1800 - 1850 CAPTAIN JOHN H. ANDREWS
Born in Salem 1775

2 Volumes and 3 boxes of Unbound Manuscripts

The material includes letters, accounts of cargoes bought and sold, Price Currents from many foreign agents, and shipping papers.

Shipping papers show that in 1800 Capt. Andrews sailed the Schooner Polly to the West Indies with a cargo of Fish, Flour and Lumber and returned with Salt; and that in 1807 he became Captain of the Schooner Cynthia which sailed to Northern European ports.

In 1809 Capt. Andrews became director in the New Hampshire Iron Co. of Danvers of which Samuel Page was president. There are interesting letters concerning steel making, blast furnaces and iron works in Bath, Maine and Franconia, New Hampshire; also letters about the acquisition of much woodland there in connection with this company.

Legal documents show that in 1810 he began his career as a merchant, and with Samuel Page and Samuel Endicott, he became one third owner of the Brig. Rebecca which carried cargoes to England, Gibraltar, and the Mediterranean and Baltic ports. In later years this ship was in command of Capt. Andrews' son, John P. Andrews, who writes many discouraging letters, dated 1827, from Baltimore regarding the flour and cotton market at that time.

At the death of Samuel Page in 1815, Andrews and Endicott bought the one third interest in the Brig. Rebecca, and under the name of Endicott and Andrews engaged in an export trade of sugar, molasses, coffee, sheeting, pepper, logwood, and indigo from the West Indies and So. American Ports to markets in Europe; Genoa and St. Petersburg most frequented.

Letters from European merchants in Trade accompany current price lists as they solicit the trade of Endicott and Andrews in Commission Business. There is an extract of the Regulations for Trade and Navigation to Russia in 1811.

Jeremiah Page, sailing the Brig. Patriot for Endicott and Andrews to Genoa writes full accounts of his buying and selling in the Mediterranean markets. He carried on rather extensive shipping of oil from Naples and Galipoli to St. Petersburg in Russia.

There are many letters from William Duncan, sailing the Brig. Rebecca, as to his transactions in sugar, logwood and sheetings at Havana.

Beginning April, 1819, the firm name of Andrews and Shepard as owning the Brig. Union appears with Capt. Putnam sailing to the West Indies. The vessel and cargo was seized by an English Ship of War at Jamaica.

Letters from Commission merchants in 1822 refer to Bankruptcies in Russia and trouble between Turkey and Russia; letters also refer to a much suspended trade with Russia, particularly in oil.

Letters show that in 1823 Stephen Phillips was added to the firm of Andrews & Page who jointly owned the Ship Eliza. This ship engaged in an opium trade from the East Indies to China.

1742 - 1833 ~~CAPT. JOSEPH CABOT~~
Salem

3 Volumes and 1 package

First, as Master of the Schooner Two Brothers, Capt. Cabot in 1765 sailed between Salem and the West Indies; then, as Master of the Brig. Tartar, he carried cargoes of fish to Bilbao, Spain, and brought back oil, fruits, and handkerchiefs. At the same time, accounts show that Capt. George Cabot, a brother, was sailing the Schooner Premium to Virginia and Bilbao carrying rum, coffee, and indian corn. In a genealogical record there is mention of the Cabots having a store, being employed in fishing in the summer and in trading voyages in the winter; sometimes sailing their own vessels. Many of the fishing voyages were made on the Schooner Sally, in 1769 and 1770.

In 1833 Joseph Cabot was made a member of the board of Commissioners to carry into effect the convention between United States and the two Sicilies. Two of the volumes contain copies of the laws and the Neapolitan claims made to that committee.

1843 - 1855 CAPT. HENRY CHEVER
Salem
1 volume

These papers are about the sailings of the Brig. Hannah of which Capt. Chever was master and also a one-quarter owner. He bought flour at Richmond which he sold at Valpariso where he procured freight for Guyaquil and there obtained a cargo of cocoa for the United States. He also bought cargoes in Canton and Manila of rope, coffee, rice, hats, cigars, saltpetre, toys and silks which he sold at a very good market in the Sandwich Islands. A little later there are shipping papers telling of his trade between Honolulu and Mazatlan, Mexico where he sold Columbia River pickled salmon. There are a number of letters about a broken brass cannon which he bought in China and shipped to Salem.

The Brig. Hamnah was finally sold in Mazatlan, and Capt. Chever went to California. Deeds and papers show that he invested the proceeds of the sale of the Brig. in land located in Yuba City and Sutterville. He, apparently, never paid off the other owners of the Brig. Hamnah, for there are many letters written to these individuals from George Chever, a brother, who went to California and investigated the titles and looked after the property.

Letters of Charles Huger ClarkCommander of U. S. Battleship
Cronin1 large envelope1878-1904

Charles Huger Clark, Naval officer was born in Bradford (Vermont) Aug. 10, 1843, the second son of James Peyton and Mary (Sexton) Clark. He lived in Bradford when he was appointed to the Naval Academy in 1860. His mother was the daughter of Major Hiram Sexton of Brookfield Vermont, a soldier of 1812. She was the grand daughter of Capt. Williams of Wilmington Vt. an officer in the Revolutionary army. His father learned the bookbinders trade in Concord New Hampshire carrying on this business at Bradford and afterwards at Montpelier. He was the commander of the U. S. Battleship Cronin. He was Naval representative of the U. S. Government at the coronation of King Edward VII.

Copies of translations of cipher dispatches received and sent by Capt. C. S. Clark, U. S. Navy, commanding U. S. S. Cronin, on her cruise from San Francisco to the seat of war at Rio de Janeiro Brazil, where Capt. Clark is ordered on account of the war between the U. S. and Spain to avoid the Spanish armored vessels. Later this dispatch was countermanded. The vessels Hitheroy and Marietta are mentioned. Capt. Clark answers in regard to his position and movements. Other dispatches follow between Capt. Clark and the U. S. Government ending with congratulatory messages to him on the completion of his successful voyage.

1898

Roswell Farnham, ex-governor of Vermont in a letter to Capt. Clark then in Florida, congratulates him upon the safe termination of the voyage of the Oregon. Mr. Farnham says he is proud that Capt. Clark is a native of Bradford Vermont. The remainder of the letter is personal.

1898

Capt. Clark receives a letter from the U. S. Navy department congratulating him upon the safe conduct of the Oregon and expressing the government's appreciation of the work of the officers and crew and especially that accomplished by the engineering force. This letter was forwarded via the U. S. Flag ship New York by Rear Admiral Sampson.

A typed copy from official records of the War of the Rebellion which gives an account of the naval assault by four divisions upon Fort Fisher, the Warhawk, the Tuscarora, the Tacony and the Lincolnia are mentioned with several officers and seamen whose bravery was greatly commended.

1898

Here are four letters (apparently copies) written by Capt. C. E. Clark and dated Navy Yard, League Island Pa. The first is addressed to E. A. Shaw, secretary Norwich University, Northfield Vermont, thanking the University for its action in conferring upon him the Honorary degree of Master of Military Science. The second letter is addressed to Governor Coor of the state of Oregon thanking him for an invitation to visit Portland and regretting that he cannot accept. In another letter addressed to the chairman of the committee of invitation National Reunion of the Blue and the Gray,

- Capt. Clark regrets that he cannot be present at their approaching meeting. Regrets are again expressed by him in a letter to the Mayor of Montpellier that he will not be able to be present at the coming reception to Admiral Dewey.
- 1899 In a letter to Capt. Clark, John D. Long, Secretary of the Navy, writes that he is appointed Captain of Navy Yard at League Island Pa.
- 1899 H. C. Lodge writes to Capt. Clark from the Grand Hotel at Rome congratulating him for his service on the battleship Oregon. J. Q. Howard of the Library of Congress Washington, writes Capt. Clark that he sends him a few verses which have pleased many of Capt. Clark's admirers.
- 1899 An invitation to Capt. Clark to be the guest of the city of Montpellier in October 1899.
- 1899 Copy of a letter written by Capt. Clark to Navy Department Washington, concerning a movement for his advancement for service during the Spanish War.
- 1900 A letter from the Secretary of Navy to Capt. Clark ordering him to proceed to Washington for temporary duty and then return to the Navy Yard at League Island. Outside of this paper shows two signatures of Admiral George Dewey.
- 1900 In a letter dated "Anchorage", Admiral James S. Jellett? "commanding Metacomb? at Mobile Bay". writes congratulating Capt. Clark upon his heroism in the last voyage of the Oregon in the Spanish War.

- 1900 Duplicate typed copies of letters to Secretary of Navy by Capt. Clark. This letter calls attention to the position and action of the Oregon at the time of the battle of Santiago and refers to the Navy Department's order with instructions.
- 1901 Copy of a letter written by C. E. Clark to F. I. Dunbar Secretary of State, Salmon Oregon, thanking the people of Oregon for the resolution adopted by the legislature concerning his services upon the battleship Oregon during the Spanish War.
- 1901 Letter from A. S. Crowninshield chief of the bureau of navigation to Capt. Clark, relative to the advancement of six numbers on the list of Captains. Also Capt. Clark's reply to the above, mentioning ships Brooklyn, Oregon, Iowa and Texas.
- 1901 A. S. Crowninshield Chief of Navigation, writes Capt. Clark that the President has advanced him six numbers in the list of captains in the Navy and incloses his commission.
- 1902 A printed article appearing in the Harvard concerning Capt. Charles E. Clark and his selection by President Roosevelt as a U. S. Naval Representative at the coronation of Edward VII. A picture of Capt. Clark in his uniform is presented. There is also a photograph taken probably at a later period. As Capt. Clark appears older and is in civilian dress.

- 1902 Copy of a letter in which Capt. Clark writes to Senator Redfield Proctor thanking him for his telegram informing him of the Senate's favorable action on his nomination for the grade of Rear Admiral.
- 1902 Two personal letters to Capt. C. H. Clark governor Naval Home, Philadelphia written by Theodore Roosevelt (autograph). These letters are relative to previous correspondence and are couched in rather ambiguous terms.
- 1904 A letter to Capt. Clark from Henry Taylor of the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, which relieves him of the command of the Naval Home and appoints him on the examining and retiring board.
- undated A memorial addressed to Capt. Clark, signed by the members of the Green's crew who were at that time homeward bound from Manila on the U. S. S. Boston. This letter concludes with an appreciative verse.
- undated Two accounts of the Green's prowess during the Spanish War are written by an unknown hand and comprise eleven closely written sheets.
- undated Two clippings cut from the Union published at Bradford Vermont concerning Capt. Clark's genealogy. There is also a telegram to Capt. Clark from City Hall Boston, asking him to be a guest at the Dorchester Improvement Association on May 8, 1909.

Telegram to Capt. C. B. Clark from Albert Clark of Boston being an invitation to a reception by the Vermont association. Another telegram from St. Albans is signed by E. C. Smith and is addressed to the Mayor of St. Albans and conveys regrets for non-acceptance of an invitation to Capt. Clark's reception at Montpelier.

1742 - 1833 Rev. JOHN CLEAVELAND
Ipswich
4 volumes

Born in Canterbury Conn. 1722; died in Ipswich 1799.

The material includes family letters, many ecclesiastical letters, church records, diaries and journals, sermons and theological discussions. In an autobiography, Rev. Cleaveland tells of his student days at Yale, after which he accepted a call to preach at Chebacco, and there he devoted most of his labors and his life. From 1758 to 1762 he was chaplain in Col. Jonathan Bagley's Regiment, going to New York and later to Cape Breton Island. Two of his sons were in military service in the Continental Army. There are papers having to do with the civil appointments of Nehemiah, his son, who later settled in Topsfield; and some letters from Dr. Parker Cleaveland of Newbury. Also some letters regarding Ebenezer Cleaveland who died on board the continental ship "Eustis" after having been captured by an English privateer.

1821 - 1875 Rev. JOHN P. CLEAVELAND

6 Volumes

Many letters and invitations having to do with Dr. Cleaveland's ministry. After graduating from Bowdoin, he studied Theology, and in 1827 came to the Tabernacle Church in Salem. Other pastorates were; Detroit, Mich., Cincinnati, Ohio, Providence, R. I., Northampton, Mass., and Lowell, Mass. From 1827 to 1841 he was President of Marshall College. Accounts show that he was a very eloquent and remarkable speaker, as well as a very successful and faithful minister. He was a lecturer upon Temperance and Slavery in addition to many other subjects. A great many of his sermons and lectures are included in these volumes.

In 1862 he became Chaplain of the Mass. 30th Regiment, and there are letters from him at Ship Island and New Orleans written at that time.

From these records comes the account of the business of George C. Crowninshield and Sons. The Ship America, owned by them and sailed by John Crowninshield achieved great success both as a merchant ship and afterward as a privateer. They sent English cloths to India, besides much capital for buying in the East Indian market. They were also part owners in the Ship Putnam, and the Ship Fame which brought pepper, coffee, and sugar from St. Domingo. These cargoes were sold at auction or at private sale. Crowninshield and Sons' terms being one third of the profits.

1815 - 1913 JOHN J. CURRIER
 Newburyport
 6 Boxes Unbound Manuscripts and 1 Record Book

Three of the boxes contain letters, bills and papers which have to do with a freight business carried on during the late 1880's by John Currier and others. C. I. Andrews, who was also a part owner and who mastered the Ship Big Bonanza, writes many letters as he carries cargoes from one port to another. Beginning in 1888, his letters tell of his carrying lumber to Melbourne and New South Wales, coal to Manila, where he gets hemp and sugar for New York. He loads oil there for Rangoon, and then takes Railroad Ties and timber to Calcutta where he again obtains a cargo for New York of indigo, linseed, hides and jute, and then leaves again with an oil cargo, and so on. There is mention of some passengers on board going to Melbourne, and Japan. There is a report of a survey made by a diver for the Big Bonanza when it became grounded on a shoal off the Coast of Borneo.

Capt. R. I. Lawrence, sailing the Ship John Currier from Hong Kong, Shanghai, and the Phillipines writes many letters, as does Capt. Daley of the Ship W. H. Lincoln described as the best boat of its time. Price lists of Commissions on Charters and Market Prices accompany letters from ship and freight Brokers. There are letters dated 1902 relative to the Ship Madison; a French Spoliation Case which was pending in the Court of Claims at that time.

The record book contains in detail a list of all the ships in which Mr. Currier had part ownership; listing cargoes, destinations, insurance etc.

1 box contains personal and family letters, and also some correspondence about a ship yard, dock and saw mill business which Mr. Currier owned and operated. There is a deed of land and mill property located in New Garden, Pennsylvania, dated 1863; specifications of lumber shipped from Georgia to Newburyport, and from a saw mill in Vancouver to Callao; also letters regarding keel pieces which were shipped and sold to ship builders in Boston, and Bath, Maine, 1887.

Two boxes have genealogical records, deeds for Newburyport property, and papers for the estate; also letters written during Mr. Currier's term as Mayor of Newburyport in 1880.

1860's CALEB A. CURTIS
 Boston
 1 ~~Small package~~ envelope

Naval orders and regulations during the Civil War when Mr. Curtis was acting Master of the U. S. Steamers Curlew and Memphis.

1652 - 1889
The Curwen Papers
Salem, Massachusetts
4 Volumes

These important and interesting papers from the Curwen Family cover a very long period of time, dating back to 1652 when Captain George Curwin was a prominent merchant and citizen of Salem. He was born in England in 1610; settled in Salem in 1638, and carried on a very extensive mercantile business until his death in 1684. His son, Capt. John Curwin, born in Salem in 1638 was also a merchant. He died in 1683, leaving one son George, born 1666 and died in 1696; he was sheriff for the County of Essex in 1692. Hon. Jonathan Corwin was the second son of the first named Capt. George Curwin. He was born in Salem in 1640 and carried on a prosperous and extensive business also. He was interested in the Wells saw mill property. He died in 1718. His son, the Rev. George Curwin, born 1682, was pastor of the First Parish and died in 1717. Samuel Curwen, born in 1715 to the Rev. George Curwin, also became a merchant and engaged in commercial pursuits with success. He later became a loyalist and spent a number of years in England. He died in Salem in 1802. George, a brother to Samuel, born in 1717 was a merchant and died in St. Eustatia in 1746. George, the son of Samuel, embarked in commerce, and was drowned while on a voyage to the West Indies in 1761. This incomplete family record goes to show the great number of years during which a great mercantile business was kept going.

Because many of these papers in the collection are of such early date, it has been thought wise to give in greater detail many individual papers, and to arrange them in a chronological order.

 COL. ENOS CUTLER
 Salem
 4 Volumes

This is largely a collection of military letters and orders of Enos Cutler while he was first a major, and later a colonel in the recruiting service of the 2nd, 4th, 5th, and 7th. regiments of the U. S. Army.

From 1811 to 1839 there are some six hundred military and personal letters from Detroit, Fort Winnebago, Sault de St. Marie, Fort Gaines, Madison Barracks and elsewhere; also copies of letters written by Col. Cutler while at New York and Fort Winnebago. In 1811 there is an order for him to go to New York and start a recruiting service. Other papers include general orders for the army from the Adjutant General (1827 - 1839) monthly returns of the recruiting party at New York, and muster rolls of Cutler's Company in the 7th. regiment (1811-1812) military orders, bills and receipts.

There are some letters about the troubles between the officers and the men on the transport ship, Eliza Abby, dated New York, 1837.

Henry Schoolcraft, Agent for the United States Indian Agency at Sault de St. Marie, 1823 - 1825 writes letters to Col. Cutler relative to putting up buildings for the agency. Also letters relative to various laws respecting trade and intercourse with the Indians, and the proper action to take in connection with the liquor traffic. A copy of a letter, dated 1824, describes the scalping of some Americans by the Indians near Fort St. Anthony. There is a copy of a receipt bill for annuities from the Winnebago Indians giving a list of villages with names of Indians in each, and a catalogue of books in the Post Library at Fort Winnebago.

COL. ENOS CUTLER (con.)

Col. Cutler was a large holder of stock in the Jefferson Woolen Company of Brownsville, New York. Letters written to him from a Mr. E. Kirby, agent for the company, give a general view of the condition of the Jefferson County Bank, and the Dexter Village property. Also a description of the building of the factory, installing the machinery, hiring the labor, starting operations on the wool, and finally making the cloth. At the same time there is the organization of the Dexter Village Co., in which Col. Cutler also held stock. Mention is made of the building of an Episcopal Church at Dexter for the employees of the factory; and later of a dam in construction being washed away at Dexter, and the expense of rebuilding. Beginning with 1839 Mr. Kirby writes of the financial difficulties of the Mill, stating that the market is depressed under the money pressure. They resort to the business of exchanging cloth for wool, feeling they can then sustain the factory irrespective of the tariff. They also had hoped to receive a contract from the government for army cloth which did not materialize. Col. Cutler loaned money to the business, but finally in 1842 the condition became worse, and due to the insufficiency of capital to carry on business on a large scale, and the depressed condition to which every business in the country had been subjected they were forced to form a new company under the name of The Jefferson Manufacturing Co., with Mr. Kirby as president. With the passage of the Tariff they felt the new business would develop, but this was not the case, and in 1843, Mr. Kirby writes that the company had failed. Some of the stock holders brought claims against the company for judgment and costs, and Col. Cutler loaned additional funds for a compromise.

There is also mention of Col. Cutler owning an eighty acre Chicago lot which Mr. Kirby believes will appreciate in value with the proposed completion of the Illinois Canal. This seems to have some connection with the Jefferson Company also.

Some of the miscellaneous papers include:

A diary of the Weather, Fort Mackinac, Michigan, 1829-1831.

A letter stating the appointment of Mr. Henry Elkins of Salem to the office of Naval Officer of Salem and Beverly, 1812. Mr. Elkins was Col. Cutler's father-in-law.

A letter written by Henry Whipple of Salem to Col. Cutler in New York regarding the financial affairs of the Eastern Stage Company. He states that due to the high price of corn and hay, and the railroad from Boston to Lowell and Haverhill, they cannot declare a dividend and must close the year in debt.

Col. Cutler's election as a member of the Connecticut Academy of Arts and Sciences - 1843.

A letter dated 1847 from Major W. W. J. Bliss, from Camp near Monterey to Col. Cutler refers to General Taylor's position as presidential candidate. Later, in 1848, a letter saying he has acquainted the president with Col Cutler's reference to the New Haven Post Office.

THE JEFFERSON WOOLEN CO.

- Col. Enos Cutler - Born in Brookfield, son of Lieu. Abijah Cutler, in 1781. Graduated from Brown in 1800. Settled in Cincinnati. Married the daughter of Henry Elkins of Salem. Became a Colonel in the Army. Retired, and lived in New Haven and later in Salem. Died in 1860.
- Mr. E. Kirby - A man who was in the Army with Col. Cutler and after his discharge became Agent for the Jefferson Woolen Company.
- Brownsville - A post village of Jefferson County, New York, in Jefferson on the Black River; Watertown is its banking point. Population in 1800 was 767.
- Dexter Village - An adjoining town to Brownsville which was already under operation at the time of the development of the Jefferson Woolen Company.

The following account was found in the letters written by Mr. E. Kirby to Col. Enos Cutler during the years 1837 to 1845.

After Mr. Kirby's discharge from Army duties he decided to start in an organization of business for the manufacture of wool in Brownsville in 1837. Most of the large stockholders were to be men whom he had known during his Army career; thus Col. Cutler became one of the largest investors of capital in this venture. Dexter Village is described as a small center built around the factory, with a store and houses for the employees. A general view is given of the condition of the Jefferson County Bank and the Dexter Village Property, both of which seemed sound and good. Later, after the Jefferson Company was operating, Dexter Village became a part of the organization, and Col. Cutler also held stock in that. Mention is made of the building of an Episcopal Church at Dexter for the employees of the factory, and later of a dam in construction being washed away, and the expense which would be incurred to rebuild it. The first letters give a description of the formation of the company as The Jefferson Woolen Company; building the factory, installing the machinery, hiring the labor, starting operations on the wool and finally making the cloth. Beginning with 1839, Mr. Kirby writes of the financial difficulties of the Mill, stating that the market is depressed under the money pressure, and that he feels unhappy in the thought that his friends have put their trust in his ability to make the business a success, and now from the conditions of the times he sees the difficulties ahead. They resort to the business of exchanging cloth for wool, feeling they can then sustain the factory irrespective of the Tariff. They had also hope to receive a contract from the Government for army cloth, but this did not materialize. Col. Cutler loaned money to the business, but finally in 1842, the condition became worse, and due to the insufficiency of capital to carry on business on a large scale and the depressed condition to which every business in the country had been subjected, they were forced to form a new company under the name of The Jefferson Manufacturing Company with Mr. Kirby as president, and a new man who seemed to understand the manufacturing business as agent. The old stockholders were given the right to subscribe their old stock for half the value of the new stock. With the passage of the Tariff they felt the new business would develop, and anticipated being able to keep five hundred employees busy producing upwards of two-hundred fifty yards a day. This was not the case, and in 1843 the company failed. Some of the stock holders brought claims against the company for judgment and costs, and Col. Cutler loaned additional funds for a compromise.

There is also mention of Col. Cutler owning an eighty acre Chicago lot which Mr. Kirby believes will appreciate in value with the proposed completion of the Illinois Canal. This seems to have some connection with the Jefferson Company also.

The Derby Papers
Salem, Massachusetts
34 Volumes, 4 Boxes, 1 envelope

This large collection of letters, bills, accounts, receipts, shipping papers, and accounts current over a period of nearly one hundred and fifty years relates the growth of a great mercantile business which was carried on by the Derby Family in Salem.

The early papers belong to Capt. Richard Derby who at a very early age sailed the seas, and later became a very successful merchant.

Much of the material in these manuscripts belongs to the business and ventures of the son of Capt. Richard Derby, Elias Hasket Derby, who was a pioneer in the East India Trade. He built ships, sailed ships, engaged in privateering, and engaged in trade, not only in American Ports, but also in ports of the West Indies, Europe, Africa, India, East Indies, and finally to China. Accounts show the importance of his large mercantile business in Salem, and the ownership of much property, including interests in Raymondtown, Maine.

Most of the later papers belong to John Derby and Ezekiel Hersey Derby, sons of Elias Hasket Derby.

The papers in this large collection are not entirely arranged chronologically, thus the reader will find that only within the resume of each volume are the dates in chronological order. Also, to make the material more accessible, each volume has a separate resume.

- 1791 A letter to Elias Hasket Derby from Mr. Will. Hill Brown, who states he is preparing to open a store of dry-goods in Boston and wishes to purchase India goods. He offers, in payment, a mortgage on real estate running from the State House down the lane toward the market which rents for £ 80 a year.
- 1791 Letters from Thomas Martin in Portsmouth, N. H. offer lumber for sale, and requests to buy tea and raisins from Mr. Derby. He also introduces Mr. John Meecher, a block maker who Capt. Derby later hires.
- 1791 A letter written by John Gibaut to Capt. John Derby from the Isle of France where he has arrived with fish, meat, dairy products, flour, tobacco and whale oil. He tells of a great number of adventurers flocking there from France and also the inconvenience caused those bound for India to sell for paper money. He refers to a Mr. Macarthy of America, known to Salem, who is an agent there.
- 1791 One letter from Charles Apthorp and numerous letters from George Watson, Jr. agent at Bristol, England, regarding the seizure of the Ship Light Horse. Captain Roche is master. She was seized first by the Custom House for caryying 124 pounds of loose tobacco on board, and 4 hhds. of Tobacco with no manifest, which carried an evident design of smuggling. The next day after being cleared, the excise seized her on men being detected in smuggling 380 pounds of chocolate secreted in the hold. All this was the fault of the captain and crew, and Mr. Watson supported his and Mr. Derby's innocence and cleared the case.
- 1791 Letters from Joseph Storer at Kennebunk, Maine, regarding shipments of lumber.

- 1793 Letters from Abraham Kilham, master of the Schooner Peggy, and from E. Gravier, agent at Port au Prince, relate the situation with the native negro; a market in need of everything; the unloading of the cargo of scantlings, and the buying of coffee.
- 1793 A number of letters from Jacob Crowninshield at Isle of France where he sells a cargo made up of pork, flour, tobacco, fish, saddles, raisins and lumber. He tells of the depreciated money and gives an account of markets and prices. Later letters tell of eighteen American ships waiting at the Isle of France for six months for an embargo to be lifted. He states that there is no kind of settled government, prices are high, and everything is dictated by anarchy and confusion. Finally in consequence of some English ladies who had been shipwrecked and cast away two years previous on Madagascar, and were brought in by a privateer to the Isle of France, the embargo was lifted, after they went in person to the assembly. Capt. Crowninshield writes that these ladies are now going to ship with him on the Henry to Bengal where he hopes to lay out six thousand dollars gold dust. He believes dollars will rise every day as paper depreciates, and he also states that Capt. Silsbee made a profit on dollars which he bought and sold of between eighty and a hundred thousand livres. The final cargo on this voyage was coffee and pepper from Bourbon to Salem.
- 1794 A letter from Jonathan Derby at Bordeaux refers to possible trouble with France regarding the embargo and indemnity.

- 1796 A letter written by John Derby, Jr. to Mr. Frazier in London asking him to buy a lady's gold watch and chain. A return letter from Mr. Frazier gives the cost of the watch, and mentions his happy visit in Salem.
- 1796 A letter written by Thomas Sparhawk from Isle of France describes a hard voyage of 204 days. He found his invoices to be extremely incorrect, and his cargo of paper hangings, wine, butter, soap, sweet oil, broadcloths, hats, cloaks, hardwards and glassware much damaged. He finds depreciated money, and cheaper prices in the shops than his invoice price for many articles -rather a bad account. He plans to buy coffee, indigo and pepper.

- 1796 Joseph Ropes writes from Harbour Grace, where he sells his cargo of coffee, hides, pepper and indigo, that due to a passage of a decree, that mandates shall no longer be paid as specie, business will be made much safer.
- 1796 An invoice and letter from Ryberg & Company in Copenhagen for three black coach horses purchased by Elias Hasket Derby. Also the agreement for the coachman who came on the Ship Henry with the horses.
- 1796 A letter written by John Saunders at New York to John Derby acknowledges the shipment of brandy, but warns him he must not calculate on its being sold for prompt pay, as never, since the rage for script speculation in New York, has money been in so much demand. There are many letters from Mr. Saunders acknowledging the receipt of goods from Mr. Derby.
- 1797 Receipts for wages paid by Mr. Derby to the coachman.
- 1797 A letter from Lane & Fraser in London inclosing a copy of an Act of Parliament for regulations respecting the trade which neutral powers can carry on at Cape of Good Hope.
- 1797 A letter from Capt. Benjamin Bullock from Point Peter, West Indies, describing a storm at sea, and the terrible damage done to ship and cargo on his voyage from the Cape of Good Hope.
- 1797 A letter written by Nathan Robinson, master of the Ketch John, to George Forbes, Esq. at Tortola, asking his advice as to procedure; the Ketch having been captured by a French Privateer and then recaptured by his Majesty's Frigate L'Aimable, and ordered to Tortola.
- 1798 Account of sales of Bourbon cotton and coffee made in London by Capt. Bullock of the Ship Benjamin.
- 1793- There are many letters from Edward Goold, agent in New York, 1798 giving accounts of drafts and notes drawn for Mr. Derby's business. Bailey & Bogert are agents in New York who send market prices etc. also.

Derby Papers Volume XVI 1798 - 1800

Many letters from agents in New York, Philadelphia, London, Gibraltar, Hamburg, Malaga, etc. The later ones expressing sympathy at the death of Elias Hasket Derby; and rendering accounts for settlement to John Derby and Benjamin Pickman, Jr. as executors of the estate.

A large number of letters from Bailey and Bogert, agents in New York who handle the selling of Russian Duck and Hemp, as well as other goods for John Derby.

- 1799 Letters from Jacob Sheafe of Portsmouth, N. H. relative to his purchasing hemp and iron.
- 1799 A number of letters from Capt. Ebenezer Shillaber from Malaga.
- 1800 An extract of a Resolution concerning the trade to and from East India.
- 1800 Letters from John Lane, London, tell of his failure in business and of the arrangements to be made to pay the debts owed to the Derby Family by selling wharf and store property which he owned in America.
- 1801 Letter and invoice from John Stille & Co. of Philadelphia to John Derby for chairs.
- 1802 Notice of East India Goods (piece) which will command the most ready sale and price in France.
- 1802 A letter from P. Grelles, agent in Boston, to John Derby respecting markets and prices for cotton yarn from India.

Many letters from John Stille & Co., agents of Philadelphia, acknowledging orders and rendering accounts for goods sold by them. Brandy was an important product of trade with them.

Many letters from Samuel Williams, agent in London, regarding markets, and business done for John Derby and John Prince.

A large number of letters written by John Prince in Boston who is in business with John Derby. Much of the shipping business seems to be in Boston with orders coming from Mr. Derby in Salem. Gum, ivory, iron, copper, hemp, brandy, cotton, sugar and coffee are the most frequent cargoes mentioned. The Ships Arab, Cordelia, Mandarin, Star and Endeavor seem to be the ones loading and unloading at Boston. Some of the letters contain family news as well as business regarding the settlement of the estate of Elias Hasket Derby.

- 1805 Letters from Doctor Samuel Willard, Stafford Springs, regarding the case of John Derby's son, Master Francis, who is ill and is staying there and using the warm baths as a cure.
- 1805- Letters from Fulwar Skipworth, Washington City, and J. Mason, Georgetown, regarding the payment of the Indemnity for the Nancy, Edward West, master, embargoed at Bordeaux in 1793-94.
- 1806- Letters written by Blondin, an agent in Senegal, acknowledging
- 1807 the receipt of a shipment of Bafts from the Brig. Star and the loading of gum for cargo. Says there is a very good market for Succatoons and Bafts; money is scarce; and for cash, gum may be bought very cheap.
- 1807 A letter from Samuel Williams in London states that the Star has arrived from Senegal, but there is no demand for the gum.
- 1807 A letter from John Prince states that a Beverly man made him an offer for twenty tons of damaged hemp for Mr. Goodwin, a manufacturer in Beverly.
- 1808 A letter from William Edwards of Northampton, who is in the tanning business, and in answer to John Derby's ad. in a Boston paper about 7000 ox hides, he wishes to know price and terms of payment.
- 1808 A letter from Charles Tilemann of London, who, returning from a visit in Salem on the Ship Tyger, was carried into Plymouth and imprisoned twenty-five days. He tells some of the experiences of the other passengers.

- 1809- Many letters accompanied by price currents from agents in 1818 Norfolk, Bordeaux, London, Rotterdam, Hamburg, St. Petersburg, Teneriffe, as well as elsewhere.

Many more letters from John Prince in Boston; tobacco, tea, cassia and salmon are added commodities in which he deals.

- 1809 A letter written by Jonathan Goodhue of New York to Hon. Elias H. Derby mentions sending a man to Salem to be useful in making steel with a temporary Furnace 'till a permanent one shall be prepared.
- 1809 Letters from John Stille & Co. of Philadelphia express fear for the safety in sending the large sums of money by mail stage and lack of dependence in the stage drivers.
- 1809 A letter from Hussey & Barnard of Nantucket regarding their shipment of 10,188 gallons of whale oil to John Derby; price thirty cents a gallon.
- 1809 A letter from Parker Cleaveland (Prof. at Bowdoin) Brunswick, to John Derby respecting the residence of his son in the Cleaveland home; he describes the home conditions, the chamber he is to occupy, and his feelings regarding the keeping and use of ardent spirits and wine with students.
- 1809 A letter written by Elias Hasket Derby from Rio de Janeiro, where he is loading coffee and hides on a ship bound for London.
- 1810 A letter from William B. Sewall of Portland, Maine, regarding action against Thomas Webster's note.
- 1811 The announcement of the connection of William Ropes and Benjamin Pickman under the firm name of Ropes & Pickman, commission merchants. Many letters follow as they do business for John Derby and John Prince.
- 1812 Letter written by Elias Hasket Derby from Ten Hills, Charleston to John Punchard, Esq. saying he is ready to proceed to Franconia and take charge of any command.
- 1813 A letter written by Richard Derby from Boston regarding Mr. Hill's patent for smelting cinders.

1797	Stephen Phillips	Salem to Bordeaux	sugar, coffee, indigo, cotton

An account sales dated Bordeaux, 1797, shows that the Ketch Eliza was sold for $10,000.

There is a detailed account for House Expenses at Calcutta for Capt. Phillips.

A few papers show that the Schooner Fanny, Capt. Dennis, master, made a trip to Baltimore in 1784 with rum as did the Schooner Francis, Daniel Pierce, master in 1785.

Capt. Stephen Phillips commanded the Ketch Rose with a cargo of gin to Hamburg in 1793, and in 1799, in the Ship Recovery, he took a cargo of sugar, coffee, cotton and brandy to the same port.

Some letters dated 1777 and 1778 from William Pennock in Portsmouth tell of the loading of the Schooner Good Fortune with lumber. Capt. Pennock sold his cargo in So. Quay, South Carolina where he bought tobacco.

In 1780, Joseph Cooke, master, sailed the Salem Packet to Bilbao with a cargo of sugar, cocoa and fish.

Bills, account sales, accounts of settlement and disbursements for The Ship Grand Turk, privateer, give an account of a large number of Prizes taken during the years 1780 - 1783. Thomas Simmons was master of the first cruise, and Joseph Pratt was master of the succeeding cruises. An account sales at St. Pierre shows the sale of nine slaves taken from a prize. Beginning in 1783, The Grand Turk became a merchant ship, and there are papers for the following voyages:

1783	Sam'l Williams	Salem to West Indies	fish, flour, onions, lumber meat, hats, tobacco
1784	Jonathan Ingersoll	Salem to St. Helena	ginseng, fish, rum, sugar

A list of articles sold at public auction in Calcutta from Jacob Crowninshield's cargo; also a list of table expenses in Calcutta are among the papers in this volume.

The accounts of fish and the settlements for the first fare for the fishing voyages of the Schooner Hersey, 1787 and 1788, James Pryor, master.

Papers relating to the voyage of The Schooner Hope, John Felt, master, which was taken by the British Frigate, Quebec, and carried into the Island of Barbadoes in 1794.

Accounts current, disbursements and shipping papers tell of two voyages made by Jonathan Derby as master of the Ketch John; one to India in 1795 and the second to Spain and Bordeaux in 1796.

Shipping papers and orders show that in 1796, Jonathan Derby sailed the Ketch John with a cargo of iron, wine, hair powder, broadcloths, perfumery and yellow ware to the Isle of France; he stopped at the Cape of Good Hope where he took on raisins and some sheep. At Isle of France, Henry Tibbets became master of the John and loaded a cargo of sugar, indigo, cotton and coffee for Salem. A letter from Jonathan Derby states that he will remain at Isle of France to take care of the property still there. The Ketch John was taken by a French Privateer and carried into the Island of Tortola; there is an account of the goods taken at that time.

- 1752 A receipt signed by Jonathan Webb at Barbadoes for twenty pounds for disbursements for the Schooner Chance.
- 1758 Account sales of wine, raisins, cotton and cocoa sold for Capt. Richard Derby by William Webb, commission merchant at Boston.
- 1788 Shipping orders and an invoice of goods for a voyage to Cape of Good Hope and Isle of France for the Ship Juno, Henry Elkins, master. (A note on one of the invoices states that the ship was sunk at sea, a total loss.)

The shipping orders for the following voyages of the Schooner Kate, 1756 - 1765 are given by Capt. Richard Derby to Joseph Browne as master:

1757	Salem to West Indies	fish, oil, salt
1758	Salem to West Indies	wine, oil
1759	Salem to Gibraltar	sugar
1760	Gibraltar to West Indies	wine, oil, soap
1760	Salem to New Foundland
1761	Salem to New Foundland
1761	Philadelphia to Salem	flour

Letters written by Isaac Barnes, a member of the Kate's crew, tell of the ship being driven ashore at Long Island with an account of the cargo saved, December, 1761. Another letter states that Capt. Elkins is dead. There is an agreement made by Daniel Wilcox of Rhode Island that he will go with his Schooner Patience and take the Kate's cargo to Salem.

There are two accounts of settlement for fishing voyages made by the Schooner Kate, William Mugford, master, one in 1756, and the other in 1758. He also goes as master of the Schooner Joseph in 1765.

- 1778- Bills for materials and labor on the Schooner Lexington. Ac-1782 cording to the accounts, Nicholas Lamprell was master of the Schooner Lexington in 1779, and David Smith from 1780 - 1783.
 The voyages are to Virginia and the West Indies taking lumber, fish, rum, onions, flour and hard money, and bringing back sugar, cotton and cacao.
- 1783 Account sales and disbursements for the Ship Light Horse for a voyage to the West Indies, Simon Forrester, master, with a cargo of oil, flour, lumber, fish and meat. In 1787, Jonathan Tucker arrived at Isle of France with a cargo of fish, meat, butter, candles, salt, tobacco, flour and rum in the Ship Light Horse, and the following year Isabod Nichols took a similar cargo to Bombay.

The papers for The Ship Margaret have to do with Samuel Derby's venture to the East Indies and Japan. Receipts show that he took $50,000 Spanish dollars for the account of himself, John Derby and Benjamin Pickman and started in 1800 for the East Indies. Letters from Batavia, 1801, tell of his arrangements with the Dutch East India Company for a charter for a voyage to Japan carrying a freight of copper. James Stuart writes that Capt. Derby has left him in Batavia to purchase a small brig.
 and go to Isle of France. He buys a boat which he calls the Chance, and account sales show that he sold brig. and cargo there, and that he then purchased a larger brig., The Three Friends, for $8,000., and made the voyage back to Batavia to wait for Capt. Derby's return from Japan. Capt. Derby's letter says that he was 5½ months making the trip, has his Ship
 Margaret as well as the Three Friends loaded with coffe, pepper and sugar, and both will proceed together for Salem.

A protest dated 1810 for the Ship Margaret, William Fairfield, master, which was captured by a French Privateer and carried into Naples.

- 1790 Receipts for timber sold to Elias H. Derby.
- 1797 A few papers for a voyage made by Capt. Richard Cleveland in the Ship Enterprize to London and Havre.
- 1809 Shipping papers for a voyage made by Capt. Cleveland from Salem to Naples with a cargo on nankeens. A protest dated 1810 states that schooner and cargo were confiscated at Naples. A letter from Louis Barney says that the papers for the Schooner's recovery from the underwriters were lost when the Ship Margaret was wrecked at sea. The following voyages for Ship Margaret:
- | Date | Master | Port | Cargo |
|------|------------------|--|--|
| 1797 | George Hopes | Salem to Isle of France
Isle of France to Salem | butter, meat, fish, dollars
sugar, muslins, coffee
and cargo |
| 1798 | John Prince, Jr. | same voyage | |
| 1798 | John Prince, Jr. | Salem to Cadiz | sugar, coffee, hides, indigo |

Derby Papers Volume XXVI 1750 - 1834

1799 Shipping papers and account sales for a voyage made by the Ship Recovery, Stephen Phillips, master, to Hamburg with a cargo of coffee, tobacco and sugar. Invoices show purchases of window glass, hollow glassware, oil, gin and steel which made up a cargo for Calcutta. In 1800, the Ship returned to Salem bringing piece goods, sugar, ginger and carpets.

In 1790, Joseph Strout as master of the Schooner Rose went to Gibraltar with a cargo of tar, tea, tobacco, cocoa, coffee, fish and lumber and returned to Salem with fruits and oil. His succeeding voyages in 1791 and 1792 were to the West Indies and Surinam.

In 1795, Mr. Derby gives orders to Benjamin Bullock as master of The Rose for a voyage to Isle of France and India. On his return trip from Sumatra with a cargo of pepper he was forced into Guadeloupe with a damaged ship. The goods were re-shipped on the Hannah.

1799 A few papers for the Ship Salem Packet, Joseph Cook, master, for a voyage to Bilbao; 1780 to Hispaniola; and 1781, another voyage to Bilbao.

Dr. John Drury
Marblehead
4 Volumes

John Drury and his brother Luke Drury were physicians and proprietors of a store at Marblehead. They were born in Grafton Massachusetts, the eldest sons of Col. Luke Drury, a Revolutionary soldier, and his wife Lydia (Sherman) Drury. Dr. Luke Drury died in early youth but Dr. John Drury spent most of his life in Marblehead and there his death occurred. He was associated for a time with Dr. Chandler Flagg. Dr. John Drury married first Hannah Smith of Bristol, R. I. and they lived for a time in that town. His second wife was Sally Crossman also of Bristol. His sons were educated at Andover and Brown University. One of them joined the United States Navy and another son, Luke, a graduate of Brown was later Associate Justice of Rhode Island. Dr. John Drury numbered among his intimate friends Brig. Gen. John Glover of Marblehead. Thomas Drury, a brother of Dr. John studied navigation after an unsuccessful attempt to become a merchant in Providence. He became Captain of the schooner Mary, probably of Rhode Island, and financed by his brother John undertook several ventures abroad ostensibly to sell medical supplies, but unsuccessful in all his attempts caused Dr. Drury much financial embarrassment.

DRURY PAPERS VOLUME I 1739 - 1838

This volume contains bills, notes, tax receipts and a mass of miscellany, much of which concerns persons apparently not connected by blood with the Drury family. Many of these bills were contracted by Capt. John Glover, of Marblehead and were purchases made from Boston firms, notably William Homes and John Milville. There are also tax bills 1782-1823 paid by Philip Cottelle, John Drury etc.

1764 - 1765 John Glover's bills included the purchases of bed ticks, knives, forks, thread, flour, coffee, pitch, chocolate, sugar, pork, ozenbrigs and paints, all in large quantities.

1744 - 1806 Other persons whose notes and bills comprise a portion of this volume were well known dwellers in Marblehead, among whose names are Boden, Woodin, Devereux, Laskey, Gavit, Fettyplace, Cottelle, Ashton and Blackler.

1789 - 1816 Items relative to St. Michaels' Church at Marblehead, such as Dr. Drury's account for candles, wood, entertaining the clergy and money paid Rev. B. B. Smith.

1817 A note given by Dr. Drury to Rev. Benjamin B. Smith for a large sum. (This was Rev. Benjamin Bosworth Smith, one time rector of St. Michael's Church, afterwards Episcopal Bishop of Kentucky and later the Presiding Bishop of the United States. See also other items under date of 1820).

1790 Items relative to Estate of Dr. Luke Drury who died in 1790. His father's bill for expenses for his son's funeral. Bill from Thomas C. Cushing of Salem for advertising the petition of administration on estate of Dr. Luke Drury by his brother Dr. John Drury, and an account of the latter's purchases of medical and surgical supplies and instruments from the estate of Dr. Luke Drury. Also of Dr. Holyoke of Salem for medical attendance.

1793 - 1838 Many bills, notes, etc., contracted by or owing to Dr. John Drury, his brothers, father and other relatives in Grafton, Mass., and Bristol and Providence, R. I.

1795 Agreement between Joseph Curtis of Marblehead, master of the schooner Sally, and Micajah Breed concerning fish, oil and bounty money.

1795 - 1802 Dr. John Drury's bills from Boston merchants, viz., Eben Frothingham for dishes; Dix and Haskins, medical supplies, soap and toothbrushes; Frederick Kast, oatmeal and phials; Winship and Jones and Thomas Bartlett, medical supplies; W. P. and Lem Blake, sealing wax, dividers, ink powder and school books (itemized).

1793 - 1800 Many accounts with Marblehead traders, fishermen and sea captains who imported supplies purchased by Dr. John Drury. These traders bore familiar Marblehead names, such as Laskey, Cocks, Hooper, Brimblecom, Orne, Sewall, Traill, Candler, etc., and the goods sold by them to Dr. Drury included white lead, peppermint, paints, all kinds of wine, frails of figs, loaf sugar, fish, lemons, brandy, raisins, hose, cloth, nails, vinegar, broadcloth and a variety of other articles.

1795 - 1801 Accounts with Salem persons contracted by Dr. Drury included those of Dr. Isaac Williams and Joseph Osgood for medical supplies, loaf sugar and oranges; Cushing and Carlton for gilt paper, school books, almanacs and stationery; Philip Chase for rotten stone and oil; William Stearns, Malaga wine; Robert Rantoul who sold Dr. Drury medical supplies and Thomas Cushing who supplied him with school books.

1790 - 1809 Invoices of goods shipped on schooner Germantown, Edward Lewis, to Trinidad to be sold by Lewis on account of Dr. John Drury. London merchants and chemists furnished medicines and toothbrushes.

1796 - 1801 Accounts with William R. Lee who owed Dr. Drury for brandy, stationery, medicines and school books.

1799 Importations from Cadiz by William Orne on brig Ceres into Marblehead district included sherry wine on account of Dr. Drury.

1800 An account of "medicines used by the Company of Physicians for the small pox." This list included tartar emetic, wine, aloes, cantharides, salt petre, castor oil, etc. There was also a list of disbursements on the schooner Mary (Thomas Drury's vessel). Under this date is a list of persons at Marblehead inoculated by Dr. Drury with the "Kine pox".

1801 Thomas Drury's bill from Thayer and Chapman for supplies for the schooner Mary.

1803 Dr. John Drury's bill to the United States government for medical supplies and attendance to troops at Fort Sewall, Marblehead.

1804 Account of an auction conducted by Woodward Abraham of Marblehead at which he sold furniture etc., once belonging to Hannah Breed of Marblehead, deceased.

1806 Notice of appraisal of Micajah Breed's estate by Dr. John Drury.

1814 This year includes a bill for the tuition of Dr. Drury's son William G. Drury by Silas Safford of Bristol, R.I., and later bills show sums charged at Phillips Andover Academy for his education.

1811 - 1812 Stephen Smith's account with Dr. Drury for the board of his son Luke at Providence. (Stephen Smith was a relative).

1815 - 1816 There are several small account books included in this volume in which Dr. John Drury enumerates the names of a large number of Marblehead persons owing him for medical attendance.

1817 An invoice of medicines requested of Dr. John Drury from "Don Antonio Santaella, apothecary in the street near the market place," Havana.

DRURY PAPERS VOLUME II 1783-1800

This volume contains 310 letters giving detailed accounts of social life among the various branches of the Drury family and their relatives in Boston, Marblehead and Grafton, Mass., as well as in Providence and Bristol, R.I. Voluminous correspondence is included between the Smith relatives from which family Dr. John Drury selected his wife, and these letters include many from her relatives the De Wolfe and Fales families of Rhode Island.

1783 - 1784 This year carries considerable correspondence between the brothers John and Luke Drury relative to a decision regarding a location in which to establish their medical practise, settling finally on Marblehead as suitable. There are also letters from Col. Luke Drury of Grafton to his sons at Marblehead and Medford, in which he advised that a shop at the former place was thought to be a good venture for the two young physicians. (This shop was established about 1786.)

1785 - 1788 This period is filled with letters upon family matters. Col. Luke Drury also writes at some length from Grafton of "the complaints of the people of Middlesex County against the Government," concerning land legislation. There are several letters between relatives telling of the forty seven days of close confinement of their father, Col. Luke Drury in a jail in Boston. He was a political prisoner for a crime "unknown to him or his attorney." There are also letters regarding his liberation on bail, his trial and final acquittal. The activities of Shay's army and the Light Horse Troops are also mentioned in his letters. Dr. John Drury's marriage to Hannah Smith of Bristol, R. I. is spoken of.

1789 - 1790 An agreement dated Carrituck, N. C. between J. D. Merchant of Rhode Island and Simon Leary of North Carolina is among this year's papers. This concerns a shipment of barrel staves in the schooner Sukey to be delivered at Charleston N.C. There are also letters on medical subjects to Dr. John Drury from patients and physicians and mention is made of the death of Dr. John Drury's only child. Col. Luke Drury writes to Marblehead speaking of Gen. John Glover.

1791 - 1792 Family letters occupy this period. Two of Dr. John Drury's sons were living with their grandparents at Grafton. Some of the family had been ill with small pox.

1793 - 1796 Much correspondence went on during this time between members of the family. Dr. Drury's mother and a child died, and Thomas Drury, who had a shop at Providence received many letters from his elder brother, Dr. John Drury concerning its management, in which the latter was financially interested. Its stock consisted of rum, brandy, raisins, figs, lemons, etc. There are also letters regarding a terrible epidemic at Bristol, R. I., and later mention of small pox brought there by the ship Washington.

1797 - 1798 These years bring letters relative to the death of Gen. John Glover at Marblehead and correspondence between Dr. John Drury and Gab. Allen of Providence, R.I. concerning a tombstone for the grave of General Glover, ordered by Dr. Drury and shipped to Marblehead with explicit directions for setting it in place. Notice of the ship Patty, Charles Collins, and her sailing from Havana, also of the ship Merchant sailing from Marblehead to London. James De Wolfe also writes of the sailing of the snow Sukey. James Swan, of Boston, also writes to Dr. John Drury asking that he take care of his Marblehead estates and mentions a "fish fence belonging to the late Col. Lee." Thomas Drury sails for Surinam in brig Nancy, Cooke, master, hoping to sell medicines in the West Indies. There is a letter from Stephen Smith of Bristol, R.I. who wishes to consult Dr. Drury's catalogue of books as there is to be a library established at Bristol. Dr. John Drury writes that he has moved into "Col. Glover's large house," and there is a note from a relative suggesting that Glover "expected more of Dr. Drury than medical assistance." According to London correspondence from W. Crawley, surgical instruments were shipped to Dr. Drury on the brig Nancy and its owner wishes insurance on the same although the vessel was not armed and carries no contraband goods. Samuel Holton of Danvers writes this year to Dr. Drury upon business matters.

1799 - 1800 There are letters in this period from Thomas Drury, by brig Amazon, from La Guayra saying that because of his illness with yellow fever he had not disposed of his medicines, but was expecting to sail for home on the schooner Sincerity, mounting 8 guns, Benjamin Monteith, master. Other letters state that he sailed instead from Curacao and would try to sell medicines later at St. Thomas and Cuba. Advices from Surinam inform his brother that Thomas Drury is called a surgeon on the ship Friendship, Israel Williams, master, and will probably go to the Havana on the brig Betsey, mounting 6 guns, Azel Howard, master. Another letter says Thomas found many medicines were brought to Havana "in a prize" which would hurt his own sales.

He thinks he will sail in the next convoy which would be in the schooner Charlotte, Captain Kent of Bristol, master. Thomas Drury also writes in 1800 that he has shipped medicine and fustick to Boston by the sloop Lucy, John Gray, master.

DRURY PAPERS VOLUME III 1800-1829

1800 Thomas Drury writes of shipments by schooner Charlotte of Bristol "now in Havana and bound for Philadelphia," of 2 hhds., 5 bbls. medicines and 4 crates of phials to be delivered to Dr. John Drury. The latter writes of his own unprofitable venture at San Domingo. There are letters to Thomas who is at Providence from John Drury concerning tombstones for "our brother Luke Drury and our mother Lydia Drury." He gives measurements and explicit directions for these to be made by Allen of Providence and asks they be made similar to that of Gen. Glover. Dr. John Drury also suggests that Thomas sail soon for Curacao with a cargo of beef, pork, rice, flour, corn, butter, cheese, bacon, potatoes and onions which he thinks would sell there. A letter from Thomas Drury at Havana states that United States produce is extremely low at the latter place. There are some bills and letters this year from dealers in various places relative to wines, etc.

1801 - 1802 Among the papers of this date are a bill for selling tickets for the Bristol, R.I. Church lottery, and a letter to Dr. John Drury asking that he try to sell some more of these tickets.

1803 Letter to Dr. John Drury from Nehemiah Freeman at Fort Independence saying he had transmitted to the War Department Dr. Drury's account for medical supplies to the detachment at Fort Sewall. Letters to Thomas Drury who was at Charleston, N. C. (S.C.?) from Dr. John Drury saying he was planning to load vessels on their joint account with Indian corn to send to Lisbon and that he could get a deck load of horses to go to Havana from which he could bring back molasses. Family correspondence, and another letter concerning the Bristol church lottery.

1804 - 1807 Many family letters to and from Bristol R.I. and a letter from Capt. Thomas Drury at Savannah. Thomas Cole of Salem writes to Dr. Drury expressing much friendship for him and his family. A New York letter to Dr. John Drury mentions the following vessels, Jason, Mary, Brandywine, Dido, and the Orient. The latter commanded by Capt. Bray was in the river Hoogly. There is also a subscription paper presented to Dr. Drury from Moses Little and Thomas Pickman of the Essex Southern District Medical Society. Letters from Richard Crowninshield. Communications from Thomas Brooks & Co., of New Orleans telling of illness of Capt. Thomas Drury and that the schooner Mary has been abandoned. There is also another letter concerning the Bristol Church lottery asking that Dr. Drury go around "among our brother Churchmen and sell some tickets."

1810 - 1814 Appointment of Dr. John Drury as administrator on estate of Mary Lefavour of Marblehead; bill and letter to Drs. Drury and Flagg from William Andrews of Boston for slates, pocketbooks, testaments, sealing wax, bibles, etc. There is also a letter to the Rt. Rev. Alexander V. Griswold at Bristol from Dr. John Drury by Rev. Samuel Dana, bearer, telling of the success of the Church at Marblehead. Many family letters from Dr. Drury's son William G. Drury at Andover, and Luke Drury a student at Brown University. Among these is a letter to Austin Drury from his brother Luke mentioning a celebration at Boston for the ship Constitution. Another note contains information about the arrival of General Hull's men in Boston for winter quarters. Dr. Drury's son John, of the United States Navy, writes from the ship Saratoga on which he is serving.

In this period Samuel W. Phillips details in a letter to Dr. Drury who is then at Bristol, the hard living conditions at Marblehead owing to the war. Esquire French has opened an office in Danvers, and the Marblehead Church "is in a fair way to keep closed down." The militia is, however, better organized. The news in the foregoing letter is confirmed by a letter from Samuel Stiness of Marblehead. Family letters from Marlboro, Baltimore, etc.

1815 - 1817 Letter to his second wife, Sally (Crossman) Drury from her husband Dr. John Drury. Business and family letters from persons in Salem and Andover, and one from Dr. Drury's son Luke, who says he hears "our Minister at Madrid has offered to square accounts with Spain for West Florida."

1819 - 1823 Notice of the formation of a partnership in New Orleans between Samuel W. Phelps and Nathaniel Ropes under the name of Phelps and Ropes for the transaction of a commission business. Persons interested are referred to William Gray, Sewall, Williams & Co., and A. & A. Lawrence in Boston. Salem names include Pickering Dodge and Stephen White, and at Marblehead, Nathaniel Hooper and William Reed. There is an interesting account of a journey to Cincinnati, and the crossing of the Monongahela river and its attendant dangers. Family letters from relatives, including Mark Anthony De Wolfe Howe at Andover Academy, and a letter from Rev. B. B. Smith who calls Dr. Drury "brother". This letter contains directions for shipping Rev. Mr. Smith's furniture to Norfolk, Va., and from thence to Fungoteague, Accomack Co., Virginia. There is a policy issued by the Merchant's Assurance Co., payable to Burrill D. Barker for Austin Drury of Marblehead, on schooner Pacific sailing from Boston to Baltimore. A letter of sympathy to Dr. Drury concerning his second wife Sally (Crossman) who died May 17, 1820.

Drury

A letter from Andrew Nichols, Secretary of the Essex South District Medical Association, dated Danvers, 1821, notifies Dr. John Drury of his re-election to its vice-presidency.

A letter dated Washington from John Law to Dr. Drury relative to the memorial the latter had sent to the Commissioners under the Florida treaty concerning the navigation of Mobile Bay. Family letters speaking of Dr. Drury's removal to Bristol, R.I. etc., other matters.

DRURY PAPERS VOLUME IV 1787 - 1818

This volume contains a number of family letters and business papers, many of them undated. Among these are the following; Col. Luke Drury writes mentioning the "Sign of the White Horse" in Boston where Col. Eames is proprietor; Rev. Benjamin B. Smith arrives in Virginia, and expects to settle there. He is called brother by Harriet Smith of Bristol; (Rev.) Mr. Carlisle of Salem writes relative to a supply for the Marblehead pulpit; Dr. Drury corresponds with William Crawley, chemist, of London, asking for medical supplies and credit; Dr. Drury writes (probably in 1808) to John Law, attorney at Washington concerning a Spoliation Claim on the Spanish government on account of the schooner Mary. Judge Story is mentioned in this letter. Many of these letters are addressed to Dr. Luke Drury of Marblehead and others are written by him. (As he died in 1790 these letters must antedate that period)

Undated papers for this period may be listed as follows; a set of blanks for the Bristol Church lottery; a small note book kept by Dr. John Drury descriptive of several methods for surgical operations; power of attorney given to Thomas Carruth and wife Sarah of Marblehead, by John Kimball of Buxton, Maine, admr. to estate of Joshua Kimball of Marblehead; long list of names, practically all of Marblehead persons; a parody on a sermon, text "MALT"; a catalogue of books, owner unknown; and a paper entitled "Of Conjugal Affection in a Future State."

1784- Included in this period are several deeds, recorded and unre-
1792 corded. There are several conveyances to Philip Cotellet of Marblehead, brazier, by Grace Pharoah, Benjamin Dennis Rogers, and Amos Rogers, all of Marblehead, and Samuel Rogers of New Salem, Mass; power of attorney is given to Philip Cotellet of Marblehead, blacksmith, by William Pratt of Malden, cordwainer. There is also an inventory of the property of Dr. Luke Drury presented by Dr. John Drury, attorney to his father Col. Luke Drury, admr. of the estate. This list contains household furniture, and an itemized list of books.

An unsigned copy of a petition to the General Assembly of Rhode Island for a hospital for inoculation of the small pox, the subscribers living contiguous to Hog Island. Philip Cotellet gives power of attorney to Asa Spaulding of Marblehead, mentions service of Cotellet in Col. Lamb's Regt. of Artillery, or the 2d. Regt. of New York.

- 1793 There is an account of the administration of the estate of Dr. Luke Drury of Marblehead by his father Luke Drury, with a list of 53 creditors from Marblehead and vicinity among whom appear those of Dabney & Cushing, Dr. John Warren, Benjamin Boden, Dr. Josiah Lord, Israel Dodge, William Hooper, Jacob Putnam, Dr. Thomas Kittredge, Gen. John Glover, etc. An execution against William Brooks of Marblehead on complaint of Luke Drury of Grafton.
- 1798- Assurance policy of $300 written for Dr. John Drury by Peter 1802 Chardon Brooks of Boston on drugs and medicines on board the schooner Richard and Edward, bound from Marblehead to Surinam, Ebenezer G. Evans, master. Another policy of $400 written for Dr. John Drury upon his effects on board schooner Hope Elias Grant, bound from Salem to the Havana. There is a third policy for Dr. Drury upon the schooner Mary, Thomas Drury, captain, from Kingston, Jamaica, to New Orleans and return with liberty to sail under Spanish colors.
- 1804 This year Samuel Felton of Marblehead, mariner, gives power of attorney to Dr. John Drury in connection with land in Pabius Onondaga Co., N. Y., deed by Philip Cotellet to Calvin Sawyer. Acquittal of all expense to Philip Cotellet in view of his deed to Joseph Duncan of part of the Ingalls house in Marblehead. The deed is also found among these papers. An attachment of Hannah Breed's goods on complaint of Israel Putnam of Salem for debt.
- 1807- Insolvency of the estate of Micajah Breed of Marblehead and 1809 account of debts. An interesting printed bill of mortality and description of the town of Marblehead, compiled by John Drury. There is power of attorney given to Dr. Drury by James Tewsbury of Marblehead, mariner, to receive all money for his services on board any United States vessel.
- 1812-
1818 There are among these papers a bond of John Drury in $500, he agreeing to support Philip Cotellet during the latter's lifetime; copy of will of Philip Cotellet (1816) leaving all his property to Dr. John Drury; appointment of John Drury as attorney for Emanuel Grano, alias Soto, of Marblehead, empowering him especially to receive Soto's patent for Bounty lands to which he was entitled for his service in the Revolutionary War; attachment of Dr. Drury's goods for taxes, he being now a resident of Bristol, R. I. upon complaint of Nathaniel Devereux, of Mendon.

The Andrew Dunlap Papers
Salem and Boston
16 Volumes

Andrew Dunlap, attorney and politician, was born in Salem in 1794, the son of James and Sarah (Stone) Dunlap. He enjoyed the patronage of the Rev. Dr. Bentley of Salem who prepared him for Harvard College from which he was graduated in 1813. His brilliant intellect and remarkable mental attainments, enabled him to advance rapidly in his chosen career of jurisprudence. After a short practice in Salem he removed to Boston and was appointed United States District Attorney for Massachusetts. His delightful personality and his reputation as an easy and forceful speaker caused him to be called upon many times as an orator at political and other public gatherings. A Treatise on Admiralty Practice written by him was published posthumously. His wife, whom he married in 1824, was Lucy Ann Charlotte Augusta Fales of Boston who died in 1887. Mr. Dunlap passed away at his mother's home in Salem on July 27, 1835.

The papers in this collection are largely of a political and business nature. A careful examination however, reveals much in regard to Salem shipping as well as that of other New England ports, and mention is made therefore, of such vessels and captains as are recorded therein. There are countless law suits concerning shipping interests and other matters relative to the violation of revenue laws such as would come into the province of the District Attorney.

Mar. 19, city and his trip thither. Also another letter
Apr. 24 from Panama telling of his journey and the Isthmus
Nov. 11 as he saw it. A third letter is dated "South American Fork of the Sacramento river" and speaks of the mining country and his measure of success thus far.
- 1850 Mr. Bailey writes his wife from Greenwood Valley, 200 miles from San Francisco. He speaks of the topography of the region.
- 1849 Edward A. Durand writes to his cousin Jane (Durand) Bailey, dated San Francisco. He is on his way to the mines and writes of the prices of food in San Francisco and other conditions in that city.
- 1850 Mr. Bailey writes to his brother-in-law Henry C.
Durand advising him as to his proposed trip to California in the interest of gold mining. Mr.
Bailey writes also to William H. Brockway of Clintonville New York on business matters.

Volume I1794 - 1857

This volume contains 60 family letters and 515 bills and accounts with Salem, Boston and Danvers merchants.

- 1820 A letter to Mrs. Sarah R. Endicott from her sister (in-law) N(ancy) Endicott (later Mrs. George Osgood) is dated Danvers and relates to family affairs, mentioning also the engagement of Catherine Hicks to a "very rich gentleman in Boston."
- 1821 Mrs. Jonathan Ingersoll of Windsor, Vt. receives a letter from her daughters Lucy Blythe and Sally Endicott also from Moses Endicott (whose name was later changed to Charles Moses Endicott.) This letter speaks of large parties in Salem. Among those giving these assemblies are Mrs. Anstis Rogers, Mrs. Benjamin Crowninshield and Mrs. B. Pierce.
- 1821 The children of Mrs. Ingersoll write her of Mr. (Philemon) Putnam's intention to go as first officer on the ship Catharine, with Capt. John Endicott, bound for Antwerp, India and Batavia. He had expected to sail with Capt. Bridges in the Cambrian but altered his plans. Mr. Endicott (Moses) expects to embark April 1, in the ship Endeavour. Many balls and parties are given in Salem, an "elegant" one at Mrs. Gideon Tuckers to which 150 invitations were issued. Mrs. J. Forrester to entertain soon. Moses Endicott says that Mr. Wadsworth's parish has furnished two stoves for Meetinghouse. (Philemon Putnam married Lucy Blyth in 1822.)
- 1822 A letter dated Danvers to Mrs. Ingersoll from her daughter Lucy Putnam who speaks of the sailing of the Catharine in six weeks and the engagement of Capt. Bridges to Eliza Chadwick.

Two letters received by Capt. Jonathan Ingersoll at Windsor, Vt. from Thomas H. Perkins of Boston ask Capt. Ingersoll to liquidate his accounts with the firm as Mr. J. Perkins has died. Also mention is made of the sheep farm owned by Capt. Ingersoll.

1822-
1823

Mrs. Lucy Putnam writes her mother concerning many social events in Salem. Also speaks of different members of the Nathaniel Bowditch family. Mrs. Sally Endicott writes of Salem gossip and mentions Andrew Dunlap's engagement to Mrs. Drummond (alias Henry) a Boston actress. (See Dunlap Papers.)

1823

Much interesting matter relative to Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Bowditch is related in a letter from Philemon Putnam to Mrs. Ingersoll. Lucy Putnam writes in another letter of the birth of a child to the Bowditch's. Mrs. Lucy Putnam has settled for the present in a house next to that of Steven Webb in Salem owned by Mrs. Crossman, says John Forrester & his wife and children are at Mrs. Goodhue's.

1824 ?

Capt. Ingersoll writes two letters to T. H. Perkins of Boston saying he has shipped him considerable sheep's wool.

1825

Mrs. Ingersoll receives a letter from her won-in-law Philemon Putnam who has returned to Salem from a voyage to sea. He speaks of the arrival of a daughter on Aug. 25, and of an 180 ton brig now building by "Mr. Howard." Lucy Putnam writes later that her husband has sailed for Philadelphia to take a cargo of flour from there to Pernambuco and possibly Marseilles. His vessel is the Andes, formerly the Oange. This letter mentions the engagement of Maria Osgood, sister to Mrs. Hiram Putnam, to "Dr. Holyoke, a son of Mr. Turner whose name was changed to Holyoke for his grandfather." Dr. Ducachet and his family are to remove to Norfolk in December where he is to take charge of a large church, and Mrs. Ducachet's mother, Mrs. Satherwaite is mentioned.

- 1829 Moses Endicott, in a letter to Jonathan Ingersoll mentions death of Col Timothy Pickering and closes his letter by saying, "After the session of the General Court, my name will be Charles M. Endicott."
- 1830 Two letters from Mrs. Ingersoll mention the White murder at Salem and says that she hears (Nov. 1830) that "G. Crowninshield was acquitted and in a new frock coat new hat and gloves went home to his father that afternoon." There is much more upon the same subject. (page 11)
- 1834 This paper is an agreement between Pickering Dodge and Charles M. Endicott relative to the latter's rental of the "middle house in block on Chestnut St.," Salem.
- 1834 In a letter to Capt. Ingersoll from his grandson N. I. Bowditch of Boston, the letter announces his engagement to Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Ebenezer Francis, Esq, and grand daughter of Col. Thorndike. Another letter from Capt. Ingersoll's grandson H(enry) I. Bowditch mentions "Nat's letter concerning his engagement", the death of his mother Mary Bowditch and of the family residence at Otis Place in Boston. The sisters Mary and Eliza are spoken of and he also speaks of his visit to Europe saying "I was met with much cordiality on account of my father's reputation. I loved my father much before I left America, but I felt proud of him in Europe."
- 1838 Mary S. Bowditch writes to her grandparents, the Ingersolls, from Boston speaking of the family marriages and especially of Henry and Olivia (Yardley), who was an Englishwoman.
- 1838-1839 Several family letters to the Ingersolls one of which speaks of Lucy Putnam's death. Some of these letters are from Charlestown, N. H. where George Hodges Ingersoll resided for a time. He speaks of his wife Abigail.
- 1839 ? Mary Bowditch writes of her engagement to Epes S. Dixwell, principal of the Boston Latin School. Mr. Dixwell also writes a short postscript to this letter.

- 1839 Charles M. Endicott writes to his wife who is visiting in Vermont, and gives news of a fearful storm in Salem. He also speaks at a later date of completion of the Railroad tunnel which runs through Court and Washington St., Salem and of the removal of several houses to make way for it and their ownership.
- 1840 Several family and other letters speak of the possibility of the sale of Capt. Ingersoll's farm in Vermont and the price asked for the same.
- 1840 Ingersoll Bowditch writes of the birth of his son Henry Pickering Bowditch at Boston in April.

survived by his wife.

Philip English Papers1665 - 17732 Volumes, 1 envelope

These documents comprise letters in both French and English from the Isle of Jersey etc., bills, receipts, deeds and agreements. There are many autograph signatures of early Salem residents. Papers of several generations of the English family are included among these records.

Philip English, one of the most successful of Salem's early merchants came to America from the Isle of Jersey. He was a descendant of French Huguenot refugees who escaped to that island. He was in Salem before 1670 and resided in the family of William Hollingworth whose daughter Mary became his wife in 1675. His remarkable career as a successful merchant is familiar to students of Salem history. The arrest of Philip English and his wife accused of witchcraft, and their escape to New York, form a romantic phase of this period of terror. Mr. and Mrs. English returned to Salem after the delusion had subsided and Mr. English continued his operations in trade in this country and abroad until his death in 1735-6. Mrs. English died in 1694.

Samuel A. Fabens' PapersLetter Book1842-18531 Volume

This book contains copies of letters and sailing orders, covering the period when Capt. Samuel A. Fabens was commanding the ship Ariosto, and the bark Wessacumeon. There is also reference to his connection with the Golden Eagle.

Samuel A. Fabens, master mariner in the East India and California trade, the son of William and Sarah (Brown) Fabens was born in Salem Dec. 31, 1812. On June 27, 1848 he married Mary Glover Wilson, daughter of George Wilson of Marblehead. Captain Fabens died Jan. 31, 1899. His wife died Feb. 18, 1911.

VOLUME I1842-1853

- 1842 Sailing orders dated Boston, April 8, for Capt. Samuel A. Fabens from S. C. Gray and F. A. Gray, owners of the ship Ariosto of which Capt. Fabens was master and supercargo. He was to go to Havana, proceeding from thence to St. Petersburg. Orders were to take white sugar with particular regard to quality and price.
- 1842 Letter to Baring Bros., London from Capt. Fabens concerning money.
- 1842 Letter from L. Mariotequi & Co. of Havana to Capt. Fabens relative to money exchange.
- 1842 Capt. Fabens writes to Messrs. Stieglitz & Co. at St. Petersburg concerning his sugar per the Ariosto and his own account as supercargo and that of the owners.
- 1843 Sailing orders from the owners of the Ariosto for Capt. Fabens, to go to Havana and from thence to St. Petersburg with sugar. Instructions concerning his letters of credit in London - Another letter states that the Florence is expected at New Orleans. Further sailing orders.
- 1843 A letter per the Rapid to Baring Bros. & Co. in London from Capt. Fabens gives a list of drafts to be charged to the Grays.
- 1843 A letter to Messrs. L. Mariotequi & Co. from Capt. Fabens relates to London credits and mentions Capt. William Cushing of the ship Florence. A return letter follows.

- 1843 From St. Petersburg Capt. Fabens writes to Messrs. Stieglitz & Co. stating he was unable to sell his sugar per the Ariosto and would leave 867 boxes on account of Messrs. Gray and 433 boxes on his own account for Messrs. Stieglitz to dispose of. Mentions the loss of sheet iron by the sinking of a lighter.
- 1844 Capt. Fabens, still at St. Petersburg receives letter from the owners of the Ariosto in Boston with directions as to sale of sugar and to procure freight for New York or Boston. Another letter follows containing orders to proceed to Rio de Janeiro if no freight for United States can be procured. The next letter changes orders and says also that Mr. William Kopes of Boston wishes Capt. Fabens to call upon his son-in-law Mr. Jellybrand of St. Petersburg.
- 1843 The Grays write Capt. Fabens concerning coffee to be loaded at Rio by Henry P. Oxnard which is to be sold at New Orleans. A letter of about the same date to Capt. Fabens concerns London credits.
- 1844 Memo of agreement between F. A. Gray in behalf of the 361 ton ship Ariosto, Capt. Fabens, and Morison De Coninck & Co. of Havana. This document relates to the chartering of the ship to go from Havana to St. Petersburg or Cowes and a market, also Havre and Hamburg.
- 1844 Two letters between Capt. Fabens and Muller & Hauff of St. Petersburg concern price of sugar. A letter to Capt. Fabens on ship Ariosto at Rio from Boston owners relates to the sale of cordage and gives the following list of vessels which are to load in Rio for New Orleans with coffee; Hortense, Hindoo, Verona, Maid of Orleans, Cato, Gaston, Roscoe, Victoria, Margaret Forbes, Mason, Inca, Margaretta, Malay. Last year 37 vessels arrived in New Orleans.

- 1845 Robert Hooper then at Boston writes to Capt. Fabens on ship Ariosto in New York. By arrangement with the vessel's owners Mr. Hooper instructs Capt. Fabens to load with sugar in Cuba, and ship to Messrs. Van Sassen & Co. of St. Petersburg.
- 1845 Sailing orders come from the Gray's to Capt. Fabens to sail to Havana & then to St. Petersburg.
- 1845 Two letters to Baring Bro., London from Capt. Fabens at Matanzas concerning insurance, bills of lading, etc. of the Ariosto.
- 1845 Capt. Fabens at Matanzas writes to Robert Hooper of Boston giving prices of sugar and its selling chances at this time. Another letter from Capt. Fabens to the owners of the Ariosto informs them of fears of heavy selling losses.
- 1845 The owners of the Ariosto in letters to Capt. Fabens, then at St. Petersburg, direct him as to his cargo to Rio. Yellow or Bees Wax is proposed. A second letter concerns freight and mentions the vessel Nathaniel Hooper reported at Havana. The Tartar, Verona and the Cronstadt were at Matanzas. A later advice mentions purchases for the Verona and the shipments leaving Cuba on the N. Hooper and the Tartar.
- 1845 A letter from Capt. Fabens from St. Petersburg to the owners of the Ariosto tells of his safe arrival 45 days from Havana. Good sugar market etc. A second letter says mail has arrived via the Cambria and the Great Western and freight consisting of iron, seed, mats and tortoise shell has been obtained. Mentions the Mary Frances.
- 1845-
1846 Sailing orders from the owners of the Ariosto are received by Capt. Fabens advising him to proceed from New York to Rio to procure coffee. In reply is a letter from the captain saying he has reached Rio in 41 days from New York, and giving particulars of the coffee market. He also writes to the Grays from Rio that the Sappho brought their letter giving prices and exchange. Several later letters relate to the storage of coffee in the vessel and that the latter draws 14 ft. 10 in. of water, also that coffee will be well and safely kept. Expects to leave on Jan. 15, 1846.

- 1846 Capt. Fabens writes the Grays from Havana advising them of increased expenses and of a large medical bill as six or eight men have been ill and he himself has had yellow fever. Upon the arrival of Capt. Fabens at Antwerp and later at Liverpool, letters from the owners of the Ariosto mention the advisability of procuring freight and passengers for the United States. Should this not prove practicable, Capt. Fabens is to proceed to Cadiz to take salt.
- 1846 In a letter from Capt. Fabens to the owners of the Ariosto from Rio he speaks of his cargo of coffee for New Orleans and his discharge of bricks and passengers. He tells of a murder committed on the Ariosto among the crew. In a letter following from the ship owners to Capt. Fabens who is then at Rio, he is directed to load with coffee for New Orleans.
- 1847 Capt. Fabens writes in this letter from Rio that the year is a very sickly one there and that he had to employ a large number of laborers as only one person (the cook) was well on board the Ariosto Mr. Cunningham was the only passenger.
- 1847 The Grays, in a letter to Capt. Fabens at New Orleans direct him as to his coffee sales and although they know that he wishes to be on the way home, yet they desire him to proceed on a foreign voyage, as they dare not trust the first mate with the command as he is not an American.
- 1847 This is a copy of a "Charter Treaty" between Ed. C. Bates and Messrs. S. C. and F. A. Gray, owners of the ship Ariosto.

- 1847 The next few letters in this volume are of a similar nature to those just noted and represent Capt. Fabens' accounts of his sugar and other sales, mostly between Havana and St. Petersburg, often shipping cordage from the latter place to the United States or Rio.
- 1847 A letter from Capt. Fabens from Elsinour tells the owners of the Ariosto of his arrival and of the bad leakage of the vessel. He writes later from St. Petersburg stating that he had a safe passage without further trouble.
- 1847 Capt. Fabens receives at Rio sailing orders from the owners sent in triplicate by the vessels Pauline, Palmetto and California. There are many letters passing between the captain and owners of the Ariosto.
- 1850 Capt. Fabens, now master and part owner of the bark Wessacumeon receives a letter dated Boston from the other owners, N. B. Mansfield, Howard, Son & Co., and Charles Roundy, giving him sailing orders. He is to proceed to San Francisco, Honolulu, Sandwich and Chincha Islands, then to Cork and a market in Great Britain. The owners of the Wessacumeon also write to James J. Jarves in San Francisco in recommendation of Capt. Fabens as their representative - An insurance memorandum is attached.
- 1851 Capt. Fabens in a letter from San Francisco writes to Messrs. Howard and Son in criticism of their method of consignment of cargo. He also states that he had a long passage of 6 months but nevertheless had beaten all vessels from Boston as to time of voyage. The Delhi was 194 days en route and the Kate H. is still out. A letter of later date written also by Capt. Fabens states that he encloses bill of lading of gunpowder shipped by Keith, Butler and Hill in the bark Wessacumeon for Honolulu and reshipped on board a Dutch brig.

- 1851 In a letter written by Capt. Fabens he mentions ship Ada purchased by Flint, Peabody & Co., into which vessel he is discharging most of the goods belonging to the owners of the bark. He speaks of the sale of axes, butter, crackers, domestics, hardware, sugar-house syrup, shovels, tobacco, brooms, ax-handles, oysters, painted buckets, sardines and brogans. Another letter tells of difficulties in discharging cargo.
- 1851 Capt. Fabens writes to John Dwyer of Salem from San Francisco relative to clothing consigned for sale by Mr. Dwyer.
- 1851 In correspondence with Messrs. Howard, Son, & Co., Capt. Fabens writes that the bark Wessacumeon is ready to sail, (Feb. 25) and that the articles invoiced were boots and shoes, beans, butter, coffee, cider, cheese, dried apples and peaches, corn meal, candles, cherry cordial, honey, etc. A new crew is shipped with the bark. A letter of later date finds Capt. Fabens at Honolulu. He writes to Flint and Peabody by the Laura Bevins and the bark William H. Shailer. The Wessacumeon is ready to sail for Calcutta.
- 1853 Capt. Fabens, now commanding the ship Golden Eagle writes from San Francisco to Flint, Peabody & Co., concerning merchandise under their care.

Fairfax Family Letters1729 - 18151 Portfolio

These letters are written by members of the Fairfax, Clarke and Anderson families living in Virginia and Salem and deal chiefly with family matters. They are of genealogical as well as historical interest.

William Fairfax, Collector of Customs at Salem about 1825, came from Nassau, New Providence. His wife at the time of his arrival at Salem was Sarah (Walker). A short time after her death he married in 1731 Deborah Clarke, daughter of Francis and Deborah (Gedney) Clarke of Salem. His removal to Virginia in 1734 led to his establishment as manager of the estate of his cousin, Thomas, sixth Lord Fairfax. Their home was at the beautiful plantation "Belvoir". During their residence at Nassau his first wife bore him two sons, George William and Thomas. Their two daughters, Anne and Sarah were born in Salem. Anne married Lawrence Washington brother of General Washington as her first husband. Col. George Lee was her second husband. Sarah married John Carlyle of Alexandria, Va. William Fairfax was the father of two sons, and a daughter by his second wife Deborah Clarke. The eldest of these sons was Bryan, who finally became the eighth Lord Fairfax. The second son William Henry, Lieutenant in the British Army was killed at Quebec. He was unmarried. Hannah, the daughter, married Warner Washington, a near relative of Gen. Washington. The Fairfax-Clarke connection with the Anderson family is established through the marriage of Deborah Fairfax Clarke, granddaughter of Francis and Deborah (Gedney) Clarke with John Hartley Anderson, M.D. Their daughter, Mary Clarke Anderson lived in Salem and died in 1880 aged 99 years.

Rev. Joseph Barlow Felt Papers

1709 - 1868

3 Volumes

These volumes contain letters from youthful associates at college, ministers in Massachusetts towns, educators and autograph collectors, appeals for assistance in genealogical work and Felt's relative to the suppression of a part of Ipswich to be called the "Hamlet." Also many essays, poems, etc. on religious matters.

Rev. Joseph Barlow Felt was a native of Salem, born Dec. 22, 1789, the son of John Felt, shipmaster and his wife, Elizabeth (Curran) Felt. From his youth he showed an interest in historical pursuits which later developed into the authorship of the Annals of Salem and the Histories of Ipswich, Essex and Middlesex. His general education was gained at Atkinson Academy and Dartmouth College and his theological studies were pursued with the Rev. Samuel Worcester of Salem. He held but two pastorates, one at Sharon and the last at Hamilton, Massachusetts. Then ill health forced his retirement from parish work and in 1834 he removed to Boston where he began the arrangement of papers in the state archives. He was also the author of several articles and pamphlets of historical and ecclesiastical interest. His public services included those of Librarian of the Mass. Historical Society and president of the New England Historical and Genealogical Society. His first wife, whom he married Sept. 18, 1816 was Abigail Adams. Her death occurred in 1838. Mr. Felt removed to Salem in 1861 and the next year married Mrs. Catherine (Bartlett) Neachan. Mr. Felt died in Salem, Sept. 8, 1869, leaving no issue.

Copies of letters and manuscripts relative for the most part to Gen. John Glover and his associates of Marblehead.

A manuscript containing "Extracts relating to General John Glover and Commodore Nicholson Broughton dated 1775. written by Glover Broughton. The first article in this manuscript is a short account of the career of Gen. John Glover.

- 1785 Copy of a letter addressed to John Coffin Jones Esq., dated Marblehead but unsigned as is the second letter.
- 1785 Copy of a letter from John Glover addressed to Benjamin Brown merchant of Kennebunk stating that he has sent a "bill of parcels" of cod fish and English cheese. Also hooks and thimbles. He wishes Mr. Brown to send him by Capt. Wormstead 60,000 shingles etc. A second letter is addressed to Capt. Stephen Sewell of Kennebunk in which Col. Glover gives directions concerning the loading of his schooner commanded by Jonathan Glover. Another communication is written to Capt. Joseph Hibbert and mentions the difficulty Col. Glover has in paying his bills and incloses a bill made out to him by Thomas Goldwrit.

- 1785 Copy of a letter addressed to John Coffin Jones of Boston written by John Glover, relative to the loading "the brig" with salt, engaged at Boston. He mentions Mr. Jones, ship Kepple.
- undated A letter addressed to Thomas Russell Esq. of Boston in which Col. Glover mentions the loss of one of his fishing vessels on acct. of which he will be short in his payments.
- 1787 Copy, in which Col. Glover writes to John Codman saying his sloop is off the beach and ready to load with fish. A second letter addressed to M. M. Hayes mentions his financial difficulties and his shipments of fish.
- 1787 Col. Glover writes to J. C. Jones inclosing a bill of fish shipped by Capt. Green and states that he has drawn on John Erving for 20 li. In a letter addressed to John Codman, Col. Glover tells him that Capt. Green will deliver to him 100 quintals of fish and to J. C. Jones he writes that he has been searching for fish to fill his orders but has had difficulty therein. To Moses Black, Col. Glover writes that there is a tremendous demand for fish which is very scarce and he is therefore unable to fill his order but writes shortly that some fish has come in and he will send it as soon as possible.
- 1787 Gen. John Glover writes from Marblehead to Mr. John Glover of New Gloucester in which he mentions his son Nathaniel Fosdick. (N. F. is the son of General Glovers second wife who was Mrs. Francis Fosdick of Boston). Gen Glover speaks of John Glover as a surveyor of land granted to officers serving in the French War and says he hears that 3,000 acres were given out to each captain of a company. He states that his brother Samuel Glover, deceased, was a captain in that war (gives particulars as to his services and asks if he will help get some of this land for the benefit of his widow and children.)

- 1787 General Glover writes from Marblehead to James Fosdick mentioning family matters and giving him instructions about sending his vessel to Marblehead as if he did so he would not be able to get any freight because there were so many vessels there. He mentions the schooner belonging to Col. Orne, also speaks of captains Pote, Trevitt, Bartlett, Foster, Morse and Cowell.
- 1787 Gen. Glover writes to Wm. Brooks of the return of various skippers and of the prices of lumber and fish. He gives also family news.
- 1787 In a letter addressed to John Coffin Jones, General Glover transmits rules for preparing a vessel to receive a cargo of merchantable fish. Also for shipping the cargo. These are very full and are sent to Mr. Jones at his own request.
- 1787 This letter is unaddressed and is signed by General Glover. It deals entirely with shipments of fish.

- 1787 General Glover writes to Messrs. Hews and Anthony and deals with financial matters and information concerning Glover's vessel which has gone to the eastward for lumber. There are also a few words addressed to Mr. Judea Hays.
- 1787 General Glover writes to John C. Jones concerning fish from the Isle of Sable which he will deliver to Mr. Jones if he desires.
- 1792 This letter is written to "Capt. Benjamin Glover, wife, and Miss Betsey Gerry" by General John Glover to whom the persons addressed owed a considerable sum of money which had been promised from their parents' estate. General Glover threatens a law suit and publishment of this letter in the Salem Gazette if this debt of honor is not paid. This was followed in six days by another note to the same persons from General Glover only a part of which is preserved, in which the receipt of an answer to his first communication is acknowledged but with which answer he was not satisfied and begs him again to pay him for the peice of land which he sold to their father Gerry.
- The next page of this manuscript shows a copy of the inscription on General Glovers tomb stone.
- 1856 Copies of letters and information sent to the Salem Gazette, by someone signed "W.". These letters are copies of correspondence of Elbridge Gerry with Capt.

John Selman of Marblehead in which the former asks Capt. Selman in 1813, to send President Adams information regarding his crews in 1873 accompanied by Commodore Broughton. The correspondence was published in the Salem Gazette of July 22, 1856 and may be found in that issue.

Glover Broughton testifies that the narrative relating to the naval enterprise of Commodore Broughton and Capt. Selman was copied from the Essex County Mercury of July 23, 1856. Following this is a statement of the honest character of General John Glover in remarks upon the probity of Commodore Broughton and Gen. Washington; Glover Broughton also states that he bears the name of Glover on his mother's side as well as that of Broughton on his father's side.

Ann Bradstreet's will and an acknowledgement for a confederate bill etc. deposited at the Institute.
- 1862 This is an article concerning the memoir of Anne Hutchinson and addressed to H. B. Dawson. Here Mr. Goodell states his objections to Mr. Dawson's conclusions as to Mrs. Hutchinson's religious opinions.
- 1862 Mr. Goodell writes from Salem to William H. Whitmore of Boston in which he discusses the progress of the war and compares the New England blood with that of the Southern rebels. He hopes there will be a book published which does for New England what Bishop Mead attempted to do for Virginia. In a second letter Mr. Goodell mentions genealogical work which interests them both and again discusses Bishop Mead's work upon the people of Virginia and states that the South was not settled exclusively by respectable English families. He thinks there were as many of exclusively superior blood in the North as in the South.
- 1859 A letter from Abner Goodell to Rev. Sumner Ellis, Harvard University, Cambridge. In this letter which is very long he discusses Berkley's Philosophy, his religious views, and the subject of free thinking, atheism in general, and the works of James Mill, Sir Wm. Hamilton, Dr. Thomas Brown and Sir J. McIntosh.

- 1859 In a letter addressed probably to William Goodell, A. C. Goodell writes upon genealogical matters with the Tappan relatives etc. He also discusses the different spellings of the name Goodell. Another similar letter follows.
- 1861 This letter is addressed to Horace Gray jr. reporter of decisions of the Supreme Judicial Court and in this letter, Abner C. Goodell refers to an interesting action of replevin tried in 1726. It was an action brought by Peter Patriarch against Robert Robinson to recover a vessel seized and condemned by a court of Admiralty. Mr. Goodell speaks of his search for a copy of an impression of the seal of the Superior Court of Judicature. He incloses a drawing which he has decided is near as possible to this seal.
- 1862 Notes furnished to H. B. Dawson, author of Memoirs of Ann Hutchinson. There are about twelve pages.
- 1862 This is a very long letter possibly addressed to the Rev. E. B. Wilson, dated Salem and written by A. C. Goodell. It concerns the Wilson family with many genealogical notes and discusses again the good blood of Virginia as compared with that of New England. At the end of the book are some loose papers which appear to be notes of addresses which Mr Goodell had made or was to make at meetings of the Essex Institute.

In a previous letter (1787) he instructs his brother to endeavor to sell his molasses to the distiller.
- 1789 Samuel Tucker discloses in a note to Benjamin Goodhue from "San Merin", his difficulty in the sales of boards, shingles, beef and fish, and also in the purchases of molasses at a proper rate.
- 1789 Benjamin Goodhue hears in a letter from his nephew Thorndike Proctor at St. Pierre that the market for every thing is very low. Liberty in France seems to obstruct business. He will go to Guadeloupe, St. Croix, etc. In a second letter dated Bona-vista, Mr. Proctor says he found no salt at the Isle of May, but had now purchased some good enough for the fishing business.
- 1789 "SacMaron"? Samuel Tucker writes from here saying he had hired a small store from which to retail his cargo and to collect molasses. A second letter from Martinico says that he can find no market there as there are many vessels in the harbor. Again he writes from Point Petre that he has sold his fish and boards, payable in molasses.

- 1789 Benjamin Goodhue in New York writes to his brother Stephen telling of a bill before Congress for locating the Senate permanently, possibly in Germantown, also discusses the bill for the alteration of the value of the Russian rouble.
- 1789 Samuel Tucker in a letter to Mr. Goodhue from "Sac Marin" says the market is dull for fish, beef, boards and shingles. The arrival of Capt. (Hugh) Smith interfered with his sales.
- 1789 Benjamin Goodhue in several letters to his brother Stephen dated New York, mentions an import bill coming through the Senate and a discussion about duties on molasses. He speculates on the advisability of chartering a brig for freight so as to keep his schooner in the West India trade. He also mentions the passing of a bill for more pay for Congressmen which was especially desired by the Southern members, and also by Gerry.
- 1789 The duties on various articles, especially rum, will be very high, Mr. Goodhue writes. He also tells of the appointment of Capt. Putnam as a surveyor and Mr. Pickman as a Naval Officer. Six more letters written this year discuss further the proposed duties and the pay of Congressmen. He also mentions his personal ventures in the West India trade and wants "The brig" ready for sea.
- 1789,
1790 Several letters written by Benjamin Goodhue from New York addressed to his brother Stephen at Salem speak of the present voyage of the Fanny. He mentions Jacob Tucker and a Mr. Wheeler now aboard the brig, who lives in Samuel Buffum's house in Salem. Says Congress is at present "running wild in duties". The revenue discussion is over but the proposed bounty on fish is under discussion. Mr. Goodhue has orders from Bremen to ship rice and flaxseed.

- Goodhue*

He speaks of various measures now before Congress such as the duties on salt, etc.; the reported closing of French ports; that one of his vessels has a cargo of Connecticut corn for Lisbon and that 8 or 10 English ships are in the harbor in ballast. Thorn-dike Procter is about to sail for St. Ubes.

- 1791 Notification by Francis B. Winthrop of New York to Edward Tucker of Salem of the expiration of a lease on his land.
- 1791 In two letters from Thorndike Procter to Benjamin Goodhue dated Martinico and Cape Francois he states he had been to Trinity and finding no sale of his cargo there he went to Port Royal Bay but a Man of War was there to prevent the entrance of provisions. He speaks of a severe illness on the passage and the arrival of John Ingersoll with fish.
- 1791 The grain market is discussed in a letter from John Bulkley & Son at Lisbon. The vessel Mary, Capt. Goodwin is mentioned and the Joseph, Capt. Dismore(?). The latter is again mentioned in another letter, also the Harmony, Capt. Drew.
- 1791 A copy of orders for the brigantine Lydia, Samuel Tucker master. She was to proceed to Martinico with boards. If the market was not good at windward, then try leeward. Some fish should be sold at windward but beef and salmon at leeward.
- 1791 The excise bill then before Congress is discussed in a letter from Benjamin Goodhue and another letter speaks of a new master for the Fanny. Capt. Needham has on board a barrel of apples for the family. Again Mr. Goodhue speaks of the doings of Congress; the sailing of the Lydia; the insurrection at Hispaniola; the high price of West India goods, and mentions John Norris and Capt. John Derby.

In several letters written by Benjamin Goodhue from Philadelphia, duties on fish, etc. are discussed, the sailing of the Lydia mentioned; the illness of his wife Fanny is noted; also the sale of the ship Flora, Capt. Thompson in Lisbon. If France sends troops to Hispaniola they will need beef, salt, and lumber for building which will affect our exports. The vessel Fanny must be ready for any voyage. The largest part of Port au Prince has been burned by the mulattos.

1792

Benjamin Goodhue writes from Philadelphia saying "the foolish fishermen of Marblehead are noisy respecting our fish bill." He speaks of the arrival of the Lydia in Salem, of the fitting of the Fanny for a "salt voyage" which later is given up, the duties on rum and coffee and his own opposition to the military bill for the Indian war.

1792,

Mr. Goodhue speaks of the insurance of "Capt. Shillaber's vessel," the expected arrival of the Lydia at Marin, as she had left Trinity and was at Guadalupe. Mr. Goodhue wishes his brother Stephen to load the Fanny with lumber and to bring back a load of salt before the duties rise. Daniel Sanders has arrived at Philadelphia reporting a good sale of rum. Mr. Goodhue mentions the convalescence of his children from small pox. He says Congress is slothful especially in the Indian war question. The whereabouts of Major Sprague's schooner Buffinton is a matter of speculation. The Goodhue property at Hillsfield is discussed and he says the Algerines are out of the Straits and possibly four or five frigates are to be sent to restrain their depredations. There is a bill before Congress to check British commerce. Among his own matters he speaks of 200 barrels of superfine flour on the schooner General Heath, Samuel Chesman, master, bound to Salem.

- 1792 Samuel Tucker writes to Benjamin Goodhue from various ports, relative to prices on fish, molasses and beef, market dull at Martinico where all are short of money and ask for credit.
- 1794 Mr. Goodhue has been around the Philadelphia wharves, he writes, and finds all busy in loading ships, "As 'tis said a fleet of French ships is expected to carry large quantities of flour to France." He says Congress has voted to build frigates. The real design of Great Britain is not known. A Frenchman fellow-lodger tells him of shocking conditions in Paris where wholesale guillotining is gaining. Mr. Jay has been appointed envoy to Great Britain although opposed by Virginians and other Southerners. Flour is about to be sent to Salem by a Boston vessel, Capt. Chesman.
- 1794 Henry Doggett in a letter from New Haven writes Stephen Goodhue of the epidemic of malignant sore throat in Conn.
- 1794 This is a document about the insurance on the brig Lydia, John Foster, master, from Salem to the West Indies. The paper states that the Lydia was taken as it was proceeding from Martinico to Guadaloupe by the private armed schooner Rattlesnake, Doyle, commander, and carried to Dominico.
- 1794 Benjamin Goodhue in a letter to his brother speaks of the capture of many of our vessels in the West Indies. The Lydia was at St. Pierre in March where a fleet of troops was expected.

- Manuscript*

There is a great deal of work to be done in the country and it is not possible to do it all at once. It is necessary to do it in stages.

1877

The first stage is to clear the land and plant the trees. This will be done in the autumn and the spring. The second stage is to build the fences and the roads.

1878

The third stage is to build the houses and the barns. This will be done in the summer
and the autumn.

1879

The fourth stage is to plant the crops. This will be done in the spring and the summer.

1880

The fifth stage is to build the schools and the churches. This will be done in the autumn and the spring.
The sixth stage is to build the bridges and the roads. This will be done in the summer
and the autumn.

1881

The seventh stage is to plant the crops. This will be done in the spring and the summer.

1882

The eighth stage is to build the houses and

Volume II

This book has on its fly leaf the signature of Walter D. Gregory and contains copies of letters written for the most part by him. There is some other correspondence. These letters concern soldiers and sailors and are valuable for matters of such research.

1851

This letter is written to R. J. Cleveland at Burlington, New Jersey and is signed by James Gregory who states that he is trying to obtain a list of the soldiers who served in the Salem Fort in the Revolutionary and asks him to assist in the search. He mentions Mrs. Cleveland of Washington St. Salem who thinks that R. J. Cleveland might have some knowledge of her father's papers. Mr. Gregory thinks that Mr. Cleveland might have some record belonging to the late Major Miller who was commissary of those troops which might give the names of the Sea Coast Guards of Salem Fort.

- 1851 Walter R. Gregory writes to Benj. Peabody of Boxford asking him for roles of names in his possession. Mr. Peabody was drafted in 1814 (1816) and served two and one half months guarding Boston harbor. He says he will prosecute Mr. Peabody's claim if he wishes.
- 1851 In a letter to M. T. Packard of North Bridgewater, Mr. Gregory writes on personal matters.
- 1851 Copy of a letter to Daniel Clarke of Ipswich written by W. R. Gregory. This letter concerns the pension of Abraham Perkins and his service (probably) in the 1812 war.
- 1851 W. R. Gregory writes to James P. Chamberlain of Abington. The letter concerns opinions on spiritualism, a loss of a patent on a scythe fastener and matters of a personal nature.
- 1851 Copy of a letter to Capt. Noble Canady of Taunton from Walter B. Gregory who says that in the search among the names of Revolutionary soldiers there seems to be no Ezra Clarke. He does find the name of Isaac Clark a private in the North Carolina troops and that Edward Canady was a private in Courtland's second regiment of New York troops. Also a Thomas Canada was a private in 2d and 3d regiments of Maryland troops.

1851 Among several letters written by W. R. Gregory, the first is addressed to Harriet Farley of Lowell, asking information of Sarah P. Hall. The second to Leoren Pease of Hadley concerning sale of fruit. The third concerns Henry N. Quin of Middleton and relates to a lot of land and right of way through the "Red Gates." Another letter is addressed to Sarah J. Hale, assistant "editress" Godey's Ladies Book to whom Mr. Gregory writes about Ezekiel Goss an officer of the ship Albion.

1851 To Messrs. Fowler & Wells publishers of the Phrenological Journal, Mr. Gregory writes concerning direct knowledge of Phrenology, and to Messrs. Munn & Co. publishers of the Scientific American to ask their aid in the chain of books for the study of mechanical science. He also writes to Thomas L. Eaton of South Reading about the "Eaton pear". There is a letter to his father by Walter R. Gregory relative to the cultivation of fruit and vegetables.

1851 Copy of a letter to Hon. Alexander H. H. Stewart, Secretary of the Interior Washington D. C. in which James Gregory Collector of Customs at Marblehead addresses him in re the benefits accruing from the Bounty Land Act. Also a letter to Squire Robinson agent for pension claims at Taunton, signed by Walter R. Gregory which refers to the pension claim of Mrs. Charity Hoar.

- 1852 W. R. Gregory inquires in a letter to Isaac Keene of Medford about the Keene family of Boston and in writing to Peter S. Hoes of New York he asks concerning land patents.
- 1852 James Gregory of Marblehead writes to Abigail Freeman of Charlestown concerning John Hackleton who was a brother-in-law to Mrs. Freeman's husband. Said Hackleton came from Kennebec county Maine and his widow Mary of Marblehead was a Navy pensioner who died about twenty years ago.
- 1852 In letters written by W. R. Gregory for James Gregory, concerning bounty claims, the names of the following persons are mentioned;
- Appleton, Zeno of Hamilton
 Burk, Thomas of Beverly
 Foster, Mrs. Huldah (wid of Phinias Foster) of Boxford
 Hobbs, Mrs. Mary of Boxford
 Leach, Zeri W. of Westford
 Perkins, Israel of South Danvers
 Rand, Ebenezer of Carthage, Ill.
- These people have applied for claims for themselves or relatives. With these are many letters to collectors in different places in New England viz; Clinton Mass, Amesbury, Blandford, Acton, Sippican, Fall River, Chelsea etc. and some of them concern the French spoliation claims. There are numerous other letters to tax collectors all over New England upon the same subjects.

Gregory

Volume III

1851-1852

This volume contains in the first part copies of Walter Gregory's letters about pension claims with memorandum (tabulated) of cases attended to. These include persons from all over New England whose claims for pensions have been taken care of more or less successfully by Mr. Gregory.

185-

The remainder of this book contains particulars of the claims of many people for Revolutionary war, and that of 1812 and the French spoliation claims with particulars of each case.

Volume IV

Gregory

Volume VII

November, 23, 1855-April 23, 1856

This volume is a continuation of copies of many letters regarding bounty and land claims possibly due Revolutionary soldiers or their widows. They are written by Mr. Gregory to persons making such claims all over New England and to the Commissioner of Pensions and other officials at Washington D. C.

Volume VIII

April 23, 1856 - June 20, 1857

This volume is a continuation of the former books, being copies of letters written by James Gregory to claimants for bounty land and pensions by Revolutionary soldiers or their widows from many points in New England. There are in each volume about 500 pages of copied letters with an index.

Volume IX

March 10, 1858 - July 23, 1859

These letters are much the same as the previous ones. There are however letters relative to the price of land warrants and sales of some of the bounty land. There are also several personal letters.

Volume X

October 7, 1859-May 24, 1860

This volume is of the same size as the preceeding and deals with the same subjects in part but also contains a number of personal letters to Mr. Gregory's family including his brother George. These letters are all written by the firm of James Gregory & Son except that Walter R. Gregory the son writes several and appears to be in business with his father.

Volume XI

April 8, 1862 - April 19, 1863

This volume contains both personal and business letters written by James Gregory. The former are addressed to his wife, to his nephew and to other relatives and the latter concerns pensions and land bounties of the Revolution.

Volume XII

April 19, 1864-February 1, 1865

This volume of nearly 500 pages contains copies of letters written by James Gregory and his son Walter to various claim and pension officials in Washington and elsewhere and concern in part Civil War pay due to various soldiers. Some personal letters are also included.
